PEACE HOPES GROW DIMMER IN COAL ROW

Collapse of Negotiations Is Feared as Southern Operators Hold Out.

PROPOSE WLB ACTION

Lewis Repeats Offer of $1.50 Travel Settlement; Strike Costs 11 Million Tons.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Charles O'Neill, spokesman for northern soft coal operators, declared today that the joint wage conferences with the United Mine Workers union looking toward a new contract for the nation's 540,000 coal miners were "pretty well shot."

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Hope for a speedy settlement of the coal-wage crisis was dimmed today by the threatened collapse of direct negotiations between the mine operators and the United Mine Workers.

With the conferences resuming at 10 a. m., EWT, the union's implied warning of a third nation-wide strike, if a new contract is not signed by June 20, grew more ominous in the face of developments of the past 24 hours. These included:

1. Edward R. Burke, attorney for the southern coal operators, said he saw no chance of an agreement in the collective bargaining conferences between the operators and miners while proposing return to the dispute to the War Labor Board.

2. Mine Chief John L. Lewis repeated his offer to sign a contract on the basis of $1.50 daily for underground travel upon resumption of the negotiations after a six-day strike. The operators declined this offer and refused to make any counter-proposal.

3. WLB sources predicted that the board would not approve a contract reached on the basis of the $1.50 portal-to-portal payment. WLB Chairman William Davis

FIRST SESSION

War Mobilization Board Meets Today In White House.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The White House announced today that the new war mobilization board, headed by James F. Byrnes, will hold its first meeting late today.

The session will be in the White House cabinet room and president Roosevelt was expected to attend. No indication was given as to what subjects the board will discuss.

Members of the board include Secretary of War Stimson, secretary of Navy Knox, WPB Chairman Nelson, economic stabilizer Fred M. Vinson and Harry Hopkins, chairman of the munitions assignment board.

NEWSPRINT CUT

Canada Orders 12 Per Cent Slash In Shipments.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Coincident with a meeting of the Canadian newsprint administrator with officials of the War Production Board here today, paper industry sources said Canadian newsprint manufacturers had been ordered by Dominion authorities to reduce their shipments 12 per cent.

As result of the order to Dominion newsprint makers to reduce shipments 12 per cent, it was learned that several consumers in the United States had been advised that they could be allocated only 88 per cent. of their orders.

DENIES REPORT

Early Says 'No Agreement on Separate Air Force.'

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early today denied published reports that President Roosevelt and army chief of Staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, had agreed on the creation of an independent air force.

Early told his regular morning news conference that "the president stated his position on that some time ago and there has been no change—nor, in my opinion, is there likely to be any."

Author Slain

Authorities in Los Angeles continue their investigation of the murder of Wilma Carnes Wilson, 31, above, redhaired divorcee, author and one-time actress who was found slain in her cottage at Hermosa Beach. Two army privates were held by military police for questioning. Mrs Wilson was the author of the novel, "Call Them Camisoles."

WOMEN LOOM IN CITY PRIMARY

Democrats Mention Two as Prospects For Posts In City Council.

The chance that women may enter the Mansfield political picture as candidates for municipal offices next fall was seen today when Frank Cave, Democratic executive chairman, said, two active women in the party were being urged to seek council posts.

Mentioned for the city offices were Mrs. Clark Brook, a possible candidate for council-at-large, and Mrs. Marie Bell, who may run for council in the Sixth ward, Cave said. Both have had important roles in recent Democratic campaigns, but neither has sought political office.

Should the city elect one or more women officials this year, it probably would be the first time in Mansfield history.

Usually, men candidates are plentiful, but with the war demands for labor increasing, both political parties are having trouble finding enough men to fill their tickets in the municipal campaign.

Name Catlett As 'Outstanding' In Ohio Legislature

John L. Catlett, Richland county representative in the Ohio general assembly, today was one of eight Ohio legislators selected by Hal Conefry and Charles Egger, Columbus, political writers, as "most outstanding" members of the current assembly.

Political columnists for the Columbus Citizen, the writers point out there were but few "outstanding members" in the legislature and call Catlett "one of the ablest members of the house."

Here is what they say in their column about Catlett:

"He's a second-termer, attorney and one of the group of younger members who worked hard and conscientiously at the job of legislating.

"One of the best speakers in debate on the floor, he has the added important asset of being a good looking chap, with wavy hair that's just getting touched with gray.

"Highlights of his session record were the important parts he played in saving the anti 'numbers

He declined to make any comment on the recent revolt in his neighbor country of Argentina.

PLEASURE TRIP BAN HEADS FOR OHIO DRIVERS

Move Waits Only Final 'Yes' or 'No' Answer as New Gas Problems Arise.

RENEWALS COMING UP

Mansfield Ration Board Asks Volunteers To Help Issue New 'A' Books June 22.

Extension of the ban on pleasure driving now in effect in 12 eastern states to Ohio and the Carolinas loomed as a strong possibility today as the first concrete step in a comprehensive overhauling of the gasoline ration system.

A steady decline in petroleum stocks on the east coast—a decline that is continuing despite severe restriction—prompted officials of the Office of Price Administration and the Petroleum Administration to reconsider the entire petroleum situation.

Although it was emphasized that no final decisions have been made it was understood that plans to ban pleasure driving in Ohio have reached the point where a final "yes" or "no" can be expected shortly. And a statement from Petroleum Administrator Harold I Ickes indicates that further restrictions on the use of gasoline including the pleasure driving ban in other parts of the nation might be necessary.

Declaring that the 17 eastern seaboard states should not have to bear the gasoline burden for the rest of the country, Gov. J. Melville Broughton of North Carolina advocated gasoline rationing on a nation-wide basis to equalize the responsibilities of all the states, in a speech at the annual meeting of the Hartford, Conn., Chamber of Commerce, last night.

While talk of the driving ban was going on nationally today local ration officials were setting up the organization for the renewal of "A" ration books which will begin June 22.

Charles C. Beelman, chairman of the local board said today that application forms R-570 will be placed in filling stations and oth-

'NINCOMPOOPS'

Rep. Short Raps Farm Experts With 'Sidewalk Training.'

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—(U.P.)— Rep. Dewey Short, R., Mo., assailed federal farm experts last night as "professional nincompoops out of Columbia and Harvard who have learned all their agriculture on the sidewalks of New York."

Turning his back to President Roosevelt, Short asserted that "Thomas Jefferson founded the Democratic party; President Roosevelt has dumfounded it."

"If some people in Washington wanted to win this war as much as to win a fourth term, we wouldn't be in this pitiful plight," he said. "This is no time for anybody to play politics with this war to perpetuate himself in office."

FLIER SAVED

Several Hundred Chickens Are Crash Casualties.

LINCOLN, Mass. —(INS)— An army fighter pilot, Lt. William G. Horlacher, Dayton, Ohio, parachuted from his plane today when it caught fire in midair.

Only casualites of the accident were several hundred chickens, killed when the plane hit the ground and exploded.

Where 18 Soldiers Died In Army Truck Crash

This tragic picture was taken shortly after a two and one-half ton truck, loaded with soldiers plunged through the guard rail over a railroad bridge near Nashville, Tenn., killing 18 soldiers and injuring several others. Bodies of two of the victims can be seen in the wreckage.

Nickel Will Give A Pack Of Cigarets To Yank In Foxhole

A soldier can't buy a cigaret in a foxhole but he can have a smoke if the people back home have provided him with enough cigarets to see him through the long strenuous days of battle.

You can be among the "folks on the home front" who provide the boys with cigarets when you drop your contribution into any one of the scores of jars placed in business places all over Mansfield in the "cigarets for Yanks" drive being conducted by the American Legion auxiliary and The Mansfield News-Journal.

To reach the goal of 1,000,000 cigarets for the boys overseas, Mansfielders will have to contribute to the tune of $2,500. Every nickel you give will buy a pack of cigarets for one of the leading tobacco companies has guaranteed to send the cigarets Mansfielders buy overseas at the cost of just five cents a pack.

The drive will continue all during the month of June by that time, the nearly 100 jars should have been filled several times. Mrs. Don Leuthner is chairman of the committee which has taken over the job of placing jars through the city and collecting the proceeds as they fill up.

Contributors who give $50 or more will have their names and addresses placed on each pack. Contributions placed in the jars will be used to purchase $50 minimum shipments which will bear the label indicating that they have been sent by the American Legion auxiliary of Mansfield.

STORES KEEP HOURS INTACT

Retail Merchants Follow Suggestions From War Agencies.

Acting on suggestions of national war agencies, the board of trustees of the Mansfield Retail Merchants' association yesterday took action recommending that store hours of members not be changed "at this time."

Pointing out that more people are now working in Mansfield factories than at any time since the start of the war, the board took the stand that store hours should be maintained as at present as a service to war workers.

PACKERS FINED

Two Meat Firms Assessed $13,000 For Violations.

TOLEDO—(AP)—Two meat companies were fined a total of $13,664 by Federal Judge Frank Kloeb for violating meat price ceilings.

John D. Pacer, wholesale distributor and slaughter house operator, and his company were assessed $8,264 and Milton Ciralsky and the Ciralsky Packing company were fined $5,400.

STAMPS ARRIVE

$5 Use Tax Stickers To Go on Sale Thursday.

Nearly 14,000 use tax stamps for motor vehicles have been received at the Mansfield postoffice preparatory to the opening of the sale of the stamps next Thursday, W. T. Houston, acting postmaster, said today.

The stamps will be sold from Thursday through June 31 and are to be on the windshields of all vehicles in operation on or after July 1, according to government regulations.

Houston said today that he expects the sale this year to nearly equal that of last year when 13,301 motor vehicle operators in this vicinity purchased stamps. The stamps cost $5.

CURFEW AIDS

Leads To Arrest Of Boys Linked To $4,000 Theft.

DAYTON —(INS)— Dayton's new curfew for juveniles today was credited with aiding in solving a $4,000 theft from a grocery store and the arrest of two youths, 14 and 16 years old, who were turned over to juvenile authorities.

The youths, taken into custody because they were out after the 10:30 p. m. deadline, had $3,838 in their possession. It was said by police to be part of the $4,000 that was stolen from the Drummon and Sloan grocery.

CITY PLANNING BOARD STUDIED

Women Voters' Open Meeting Tomorrow To Discuss Move, $663,000 Surplus.

Creation of a new seven-member city planning commission to assist in mapping a post-war program for Mansfield will come before the Richland County League of Women Voters at an open meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p. m., officers of the league said today.

The planning commission idea, discussed frequently by the women's organization in recent months, was seen as a possible stepping stone to the advancement of the city manager plan by the league. Certain members of the county league have expressed willingness to support a city managership program here, but they have not pushed the plan to the front.

As proposed by the league, the planning commission would have non-salaried members representing labor, management, and possibly the legal profession in the city.

It would work with city officials in mapping a city develop-

Hit-Skip Driver Kills Mother Of 4 Near Ashland

ASHLAND—Ashland county authorities were seeking a hit-skip motorist today after the body of Mrs. Harry C. Bates, 36, mother of four children, was found in a ditch near her home at Nankin this morning

Mrs. Bates had been visiting a neighbor and left to return home at approximately 11:30 p. m. The body was found by her husband at 3 a. m., after he discovered she had not returned home.

Sheriff Dale Hammond said no trace of the driver had been found despite exhaustive search for clues by deputies.

Acting Coroner Dr. P. E. Decatur said death was caused by a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Besides the husband, she is survived by four sons, Charles, Edward, Kenneth and Larry, all at home; five brothers, Harold Edington, Monroe county; George, Shreve; Forrest, Woodfield; Chauncey, Ashland, and Clyde, Jeromesville; five sisters, Mrs. Goldie Dillon, Jeromesville; Mrs. Minerva Tanner, Mansfield; Mrs. Opal Motter, Ashland; Mrs. Grace Steiner, Coral Ridge, Ky.; and Mrs. Myrtel Bott, Woodfield.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home, with Rev. R. D. Winger, pastor of Federated church, Nankin, officiating. Burial will be in Nankin cemetery.

Big Amphibious Blows Against Continent Due

Rome, Berlin Report Attack On Prison Island By Units Of British.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Communiques broadcast from Rome and Berlin reported today that the first Allied landing attempt on one of Italy's outlying islands, the desolate prison island of Lampedusa, was repulsed last night.

Official military and naval quarters in London did not confirm the Axis announcements immediately, and the Axis itself appeared to recognize that Lampedusa would not be an objective in a full-blown invasion attempt when a German-controlled broadcast from Vichy said "A british and American offensive against Italy may be expected at any moment."

DNB, official German news agency, said in a broadcast, however, that the attempt on Lampedusa was a "serious effort" to take the island by five companies of British Commmandos superbly trained and equipped.

Lampedusa, 70 miles east of Sousse on the east Tunisian coast and 120 miles south of Sicily, normally has a population of about 3,500 of whom a fifth are convicts. It is a spot of desert jutting up from the Mediterranean and the most southerly of Italy's outlying defense positions. Although it once figured as a secondary Italian air base, it has not been a recent objective of Allied air attacks.

The Italian communique said the island had been under repeated aerial attacks.

"The enemy attempted a landing on the island of Lampedusa," the war bulletin said. "The attempt was carried out by British units. It was promptly repulsed by our defenses which sank several enemy naval vessels."

Military and naval quarters in London remained silent on the report.

British Chief Vows No Relaxing Of Air War On Axis Foes.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Churchill told commons today that a large scale invasion of Europe was approaching, that the Allies were determined to destroy the Axis by air and other means and voiced confidence that the deadly submarine menace was swiftly being overcome.

"It is evident that amphibious operations of a peculiar complexity and hazard on a large scale are approaching," he said in his first war review since his Washington and North African conferences. "Operations now impending in the European theater of war have been fitted into their proper place in relation to the general war."

About the Allied air offensive, which many term the actual first phase of the invasion, Churchill said:

"So far as the British government and the dominion governments and also the governments of the United States and the Russian Soviet republics are concerned, nothing will turn us from our endeavor and intention to accomplish the complete destruction of our foes by bombing from the air, in addition to all other means. The steady wearing down of the German and Japanese air forces is proceeding remorselessly."

He disclosed that a "very long range air power—V. L. R. as it is called"—was in effective operation against submarines and that the first week of June "is the best ever" in U-boat kills. May was the best month of the war in the battle at sea, he said, and this may be a "fateful milestone" toward Axis defeat since the Axis was banking heavily on the U-boat.

He said the prisoners captured in Tunisia totaled 248,000—24,000 more than any previous estimate. He said 50,000 Axis troops had

CONFER: Adm. King Talks To Nimitz On New Global Strategy

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—United States fighter planes shot down 19 Japanese Zero fighters and damaged six others in an air battle near the American-held Russell islands in the Solomons, the navy reported today. The engagement occurred Monday, Solomon Islands time. Seven United States planes were lost but three of the American pilots were saved.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Coincident with Gen. George C. Marshall's return from conferences in North Africa, Secretary of the Navy Knox today disclosed that Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U. S. fleet, had conferred with his top ranking officer in the Pacific.

The secretary declined at his press conference to go into details regarding the meeting on the west coast between King and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of America's Pacific fleet. He indicated, however, that the two ranking naval officers discussed United Nations global strategy which was outlined at the recent meetings between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England.

The conferences between Marshall and United Nations leaders in North Africa and King and Nimitz on the Pacific coast raised the possibility that the United States was planning simultaneous blows against Japan on one side and Germany and Italy on the other.

TEMPORARY: Ramirez Asserts Argentina Neutral 'At Present'

(By United Press)

BUENOS AIRES—Argentina, only Latin American country maintaining relations with the Axis, was pledged by its new government today to remain neutral "for the present."

(Diplomatic sources in Montevideo, across the mouth of the Plata river from Buenos Aires, said the use of the phrase "for the present" was significant and left the way open for a change of attitude in the near future.

President Gen. Pedro Ramirez, in proclaiming his country's foreign policy shortly before his inauguration last night, said that his government affirmed, however, Argentina's traditional policy of friendship and loyal cooperation with the American nations in accordance with existing pacts."

"In respect to the rest of the world," Ramirez said, "its policy for the present is neutrality. The provisional government further believes it necessary to express adherence to the principle of absolute autonomy of states . . . and therefore will not tolerate any foreign interference."

Ramirez and his cabinet, comprising five army officers, four naval officers and one civilian, were sworn in less than 15 hours after Ramirez accepted the mandate from Gen. Arturo Rawson, his co-leader in Friday's march on

Angry Soldiers, Sailors Undrape Zoot Suiters' Drape Shapes In Los Angeles

Police Kept Busy During Night of Attacks on 'Hooligans.'

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES — Civil and military police early today succeeded in dispersing thousands of service men and civilians in the downtown business district after a night of disorder in which zoot-suited youths were ferreted out by sailors and soldiers who divested at least 50 of their bizarre attire.

By 1 a. m. police and sheriff's deputies had arrested 24 civilians, 11 sailors and five soldiers on charges of disturbing the peace and unlawful assembly. In three nights of battling with service men, who maintain they and their girl friends have been "pushed around" at random by hooligans, more than 100 youths in reat pleat trousers and knee-length coats were jailed on vagrancy counts.

Police Chief C. B. Horrall declared a general riot alarm last night, summoning 1,000 policemen to special duty. Navy shore patrolmen and military police, in jeeps and afoot, also toured streets teeming with service men and spectators and jammed with traffic.

Cars and taxis carrying bands of bluejackets and soldiers sped through the district, halting at theaters, cafes, penny arcades and dance halls in search of zoot-suiters. Victims, their outlandish clothes stripped from

Things to Be Remembered In Make-Up

MME. QUI VIVE

Every woman seems to have her own beautifying methods. The wise one will keep her eyes open and her ears alert when she spends a few precious moments at the beautytorium. She'll pick up ideas that she can apply at home.

When a makeup artist does lip tinting she draws a faint outline of the mouth portals. She starts in the center of the lip, works outward, takes pains to have the ends of the lips fully colored. We see lips that aren't completely groomed. Centers are touched into brilliance but the ends are patchy or pale. Also, the application doesn't include enough of the inner surface. One must be careful about that else the ruby pigment will be picked up by the teeth.

There is the matter of applying powder. No woman wants to look as if her face were calcimined, but many do appear chalky. The main fault is not in giving the skin sufficient friction when a foundation cosmetic is applied. If there is more than a faint film, powder will cake. The result: every wrinkle will be in the public eye, and that's what foundation treatments are supposed to avoid.

Fluff on powder lightly; treat the nose last. Don't stop at the jawline. Include the neck, so there will not be a color divorce between face and throat.

Perhaps you don't give your scalp a five-minute massage every night as you should because it tires you to do it. Place your elbows on your dressing table. Spread fingers and thumbs over your scalp, give it a mauling. You'll be surprised to find how this treatment will rest you. Takes weary pains out of your head and your mind too. Dig your thumbs into the flesh at the napeline. Do rotary movements at the temples. You'll find yourself getting nice and yawny, ready for the coming of the sandman.

After the massage, brush your hair. Now don't tell me that it will spoil your wave. Hush up along that line. If you don't take care of your mop you won't have much of a mop to curl.

Throw your head forward, brush your hair up. Brush until your scalp tingles. In the morning your locks will look alive, shining bright.

How are you on face washing? Do we hear a laugh? As if everybody doesn't know how to scrub the human map! Well, do you friction soap suds into your eyebrows, give them a shampoo? We'll bet you don't. Do you dig into the little creases around the wings of your nose where blackheads are prone to gather? How about the rinsing? After you dry your face do you give it a little spanking to bring a pleasing color?

Maybe these matters are trifles, but they count in the sum total of beautifying effort.

Tells Girls How to Treat Oily Skin

During the winter season the girl with oily skin and beaming nose is full of moans, but when summer comes she howls. Her affliction, she believes, tops the list of beauty grievances.

What's the whyfore of this unpleasant condition? Let's get down to brass tacks. There is present an overstimulated state of the sebaceous glands. These little oil geysers perform numerous duties. They remove waste products. They keep skin surface soft, smooth and pliable. They protect it from injury by friction, exposure to strong sunlight, atmospheric dust and flaying winds. They are a protective barrier against various dangers. They keep the body from losing heat too rapidly.

From the blood streams they pick up various elements that unite and form what is called "sebum." This substance is particularly necessary for hair health; without it the shafts would become dry and brittle.

During adolescence, the sebaceous glands are extra active, growth having something to do with this state of affairs. As bacteria is more likely to raise trouble on an oily skin than on a dry one, pimples often form.

Soap should be used freely, but it should be completely removed. After the lathering there should be a warm rinsing, then a cold one. Soap scum left in the hair increases the oily state, causes the brain mat to have tantrums so it won't stay put.

After using soap night and morning, with the warm and cold rinsing afterward, an astringent should be used. A simple and effective one is made by combining one ounce of witch hazel, one-fourth ounce of baric acid and one-half pint of camphor water. Your druggist will shake this together for you. Apply with cotton, let it dry on.

Use cosmetics sparingly; do not let them remain on overnight. Select a light powder, not one with an oily base. When applying powder do not grind it in. Fluff it on, remove the surplus with a powder brush.

The intake of fat foods should be limited. Pastries must be cut down since oily substances provide the glands with more material than they need for carrying on their regular business.

Drink fruit and vegetable juices, eat a green salad once a day. What we eat is a factor in determining the state of the complexion. A balanced diet is probably the best of all cosmetics.

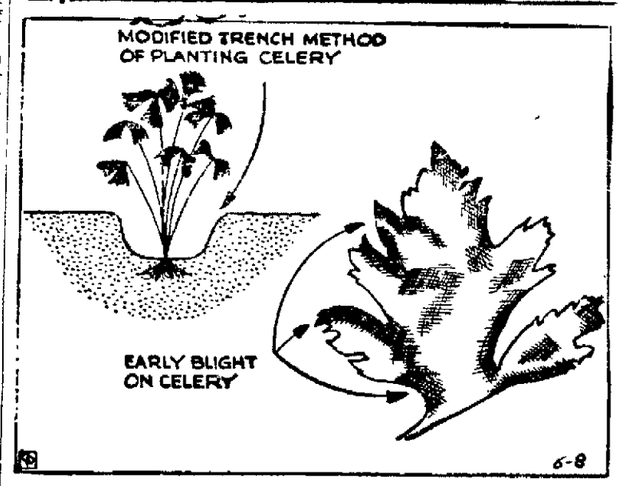
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Success With Celery In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Victory gardeners undertaking to grow celery for the first time should know that it is a greedy plant and wants large quantities of food and moisture. In fact, it is almost impossible to get soil that is too rich or too moist for celery.

Young celery plants should be set out when the soil is thoroughly wet, either from rain or after a soaking with the garden hose. Celery plants do not respond well if transplanted when the soil is dry and hard. Care must also be taken to prevent the roots drying out during transplanting operations.

Many gardeners prefer to plant celery in a trench three to four inches deep, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. As the plants grow the trench is gradually filled in.

Leaf-blight is an enemy disease of celery which must be carefully guarded against, since it is very destructive to the plant. Early blight, illustrated in the Garden-Graph, causes ash-gray, irregular, velvety, dead areas on leaves and leaf-stalks.

Leaf-blight can be prevented by early spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Once the blight infects celery the plant cannot be cured, although the blight can be held under control by the use of Bordeaux mixture. When blight is present the celery should be sprayed every 10 days until it is ready for bleaching.

'CISTERN TWINS' TO MEET AGAIN

TWIN FALLS, Idaho — (INS) — Found 23 years ago, abandoned in a well at Omaha, the famed "Cistern Twins" were destined to meet again in Tampa, Fla.

Mrs. Dick Catron of Twin Falls and her brother, Pvt. William Allen Hamilton, were reared by foster parents and never really got to know each other.

The War Department recently located Hamilton at Mrs Catron's request and the pair will get acquainted at Tampa where the soldier is stationed.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, June 9.

According to the lunar transits there may be a state of conflict and contradiction in the general conditions of this day. There is promise of moderately successful and satisfactory activity in many fields of endeavor. Unwise changes may be made. With care and restraint there should be promise of success and good fortune.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a state of conflict during the year, with promise of gaining desired aims attended by personal happiness and fair fortune, but a strong urge to impulsive moves, emotional outbursts, erratic or irregular conduct, may prove distressing. Careless or strange handling of papers, documents or other writings, may be deceptive, causing regret and loss unless rigidly curbed or regulated. Romantic affairs may also partake of this queer irresponsibility. Be prudent and above board in all.

A child born on this day should have versatility and ingenuity, but this may be undermined by impetuosity or emotionalism, inciting to erratic or peculiar behavior, jeopardizing its happiness and good fortune.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

THERE WAS something in my father's voice which made me catch my breath.

"You mean," I asked, "that you want her to go to the bank as Georges' representative, draw out fifthy thousand dollars and take it to that unknown woman, who you think, may be Ruth Hayes, in that hotel?"

He gave me a sudden smile and I guessed that my tell-tale face was reflecting my horrified astonishment.

"It does seem fantastic and unbelievable," he said, "but that is what I want her to do. It is the chance for which I have been waiting, to get something concrete on both Redfield and Ruth Hayes. You see, for some reason, Redfield has not yet gone near the bank, so we have been unable to pin this forgery and impersonation on him, —something which I wish greatly to do."

He leaned back in his chair, put the tips of his fingers together, and I waited, knowing that he meant to explain things further to me.

"I may be wrong," he said, "but I think this impersonation scheme is one of Redfield's own ideas. He is as much a criminal at heart as any of them, but he loves his place in the theater more than anything else, and I imagine he may be trying to buy his freedom from the gang by this large sum of money and the prospect of more. He could still serve them in small ways, but he would not be involved—or so he mistakenly imagines"—and my father smiled sardonically, "with their more dangerous activities."

He paused, then finished after a minute.—"So all this makes it imperative that Olina go to that rendezvous."

From somewhere deep within me, I summoned courage to voice the question which had been on my lips ever since he announced his decision. "There will be danger to Olina in this trip, will there not?" I asked.

"Yes," he said at last "if I am to be honest with you there will be danger for her. But" he added quickly, "there will be no more danger for her than will menace you."

"Oh,—so I am to be with her! I am glad of that!" I exclaimed.

"You never think of your own danger," he said affectionately, then went on hurriedly "But I am sure that the guards I will have hidden around that hotel corridor will be adequate to deal with any emrgency which may arise. It is the hundredth—more probably the thousandth—chance of a stray bullet, or something like that, which may nullify all our safeguards. Yet this thing is so important that I am permitting you to go there, so I do not feel that Olina can receive more consideration than I am allowing you."

"That is true," I said, "but at least I know there is danger, Olina, and her mother—and Philip Veritzen—do not know this. I feel that Olina should not go into this thing blindfolded. She--and her mother and stepfather--should be told exactly what she faces."

My father's eyebrows had contracted into a heavy frown as I began my little speech. But they relaxed before I finished, and his prompt reply was accompanied by a quizzical smile that told me he already had planned to do exactly what I had proposed.

"You are right," he said "Will you please go over to the Veritzen apartment at once, tell Olina and get her decision as soon as you possibly can? I must know her answer without delay in order to get on with my preparations for safeguarding her as well as laying a trap for Ruth Hayes and Redfield."

I rose, but my father made a delaying gesture, and looked again at the note purporting to be from Georges.

"The hour isn't named here, is it?" he said "Or does this word 'eleven' written in pencil at the side of the page mean that hour?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE VITAL THIRD TRICK

With an entryless hand, except for your long suit, the question of running it against the declarer's No trump game contract usually depends on your ability to take the third round trick. If you fail to do that, the declarer will generally be able to stop your run of the suit. It will pay you frequently to exert every effort then to retain the one high card in the suit which can give you reentry until the time of that crucial third trick.

	♠ A Q 8 4 3 ♥ 9 6 ♦ 7 5 4 ♣ A 7 2
♠ J 10 7 5 ♥ A 8 3 ♦ K 10 ♣ J 9 6 4	N W E S	♠ 6 2 ♥ K J 7 5 2 ♦ 9 8 3 2 ♣ 8 5
	♠ K 9 ♥ Q 10 4 ♦ A Q J 6 ♣ K Q 10 3

Dealer, South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

That was the contract at all table of a duplicate pair game, the bidding being also exactly the same everywhere, and West in every case led the unbid hearts, either the 3 or the 8—it made no difference which. East's play made a terrific difference, however, after the dummy played low.

At most tables East used the heart K on the first trick, the 5 being returned, South playing the 10 and West the A, his final heart then coming back to the Q. Loss of the diamond finesse a few moments later set up a second trick in that suit, so that three tricks each in the black suits produced a game. When West was in with the diamond K, he had no hearts to return to East, whose long suit therefore died.

Where East played soundly to the first trick, his J, the contract was beaten. He staked all on South having either only the Q at the top of three, or the A at the head of two cards. South won that trick with the Q—he had to, or lose five tricks in the suit—then gave himself three chances for the contract, knowing he must run nine consecutive tricks or else be set by hearts. He used three top spades seeking a break which did not come, then the club K, Q and A for a break there which failed, and finally the diamond J finesse. When that failed, West cashed the spade J, scored the heart A and then led to the heart K, so that four heart tricks put the declarer down two.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 10 5 3 ♥ A Q 9 ♦ K 4 2 ♣ A K Q 7
♠ J 6 ♥ J 10 5 2 ♦ A 9 5 ♣ J 10 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q 9 4 3 ♥ K 8 7 4 3 ♦ 6 ♣ 8 5 4
	♠ A K 7 6 ♥ 6 ♦ Q J 10 8 7 3 ♣ 9 6

(Deale[illegible] South. North-South vulnerable.)

If South bids diamonds and spades, North clubs, and North winds up as declarer at 6 No-Trumps, what is the most expert defense against his contract?

Nazi Officers Wait Allied Invasion 'Hour By Hour'

DEPENDING ON U-BOAT FLEET FOR DEFENSE

German Analyst Sure First Blow Will Be Struck In Mediterranean.

By JOHN COLBURN

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholms Tidningen quoted Nazi military circles as saying that German officers must count from hour to hour on an Allied invasion.

These circles, he said, asserted they were depending on a powerful submarine fleet to aid in wrecking the invaders' landing operations.

He said these German military sources told him they were watching for Allied blows against Belgium, the northern French coast, southern France, Italy and the Balkans.

The Berlin correspondent of the Svenska Dagbladet at the same time quoted Dr. Kurt Pseisser, German military analyst, as saying that the first attack would come from the Mediterranean since, he said, the Allies have three well-drilled and excellently-equipped armies—two British and one American—and a reserve of French troops ready for action.

Germans were quoted as saying that the Allies were growing stronger, could not be underestimated and likely would engineer a "clever invasion plan."

They asserted, according to the Swedish press accounts, that an attack could not be a complete surprise as everything was ready for defense, but the moment of invasion and the points of landing might create a relative surprise for a short period.

The German high command, these advices said, was expecting diversified attacks and was concentrating main bodies of Axis troops inland, rather than spreading them along the coast, so forces could be shifted as needed.

The Stockholms Tidningen correspondent said that Berlin military sources, pointing out it was only 35 minutes across the English channel from Britain to northern France, gave this picture of what might happen if an invasion were launched there:

British warships would set up a terrific barrage against European coastal batteries, accompanied by a mass aerial bombardment.

Small landing boats carrying 120 men each would proceed under the barrage cover toward the coast, carrying some 50,000 men in the first attack wave.

Other boats carrying light weapons and small tanks would be in the first wave.

As soon as the attack was discovered, the Germans would concentrate U-boat packs, which were presumed to be stationed around possible invasion areas waiting for an Allied blow, and aerial power in an effort to wreck the landing plans.

The Germans were quoted as estimating that only 13,000 of the first 50,000 troops could be landed to establish a bridgehead.

COUNCIL GIVES FINAL O. K. ON ROUTE 42 JOB

Sets Up $30,000 Cost Plan, With $12,000 Being Paid By Property Owners.

A $74,000 project to eliminate one of Mansfield's traffic bottlenecks at South Main street and Lexington avenue and improve four of the city's principal thoroughfares received final approval of city council at a special meeting last night.

While the meeting was called specifically for approving the state highway department plans for the project, council enacted six other pieces of legislation, most of them dealing with minor projects

Setting up a plan for financing the city's $30,000 share of the street job, council enacted legislation providing for assessment of $12,100 of that amount against property owners along South Main street and Lexington avenue on the benefit plan. The state will pay $44,000 of the total cost.

Under plans approved last night, both South Main street and Lexington avenue will be resurfaced with "black-top" over their entire length and Main street will be widened six feet from Glessner avenue to the intersection with Lexington avenue. Plans also call for widening of Lexington avenue for a short distance south of the intersection with Main street and again at the city limits and the construction of two pedestrian safety islands at the intersection.

Included in the project will be resurfacing of Marion avenue from Glessner to Cline avenues and Park avenue west from West Park drive to Linden road. The work is expected to start by Aug. 1.

Council approved a petition to vacate five feet off the side of Elmwood drive north from West Fourth street and authorized City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner to draw up legislation for the change The state highway department will be notified of the action so it can make necessary changes in plans for paving the intersection of Elmwood drive and West Fourth street at the end of the half million-dollar grade elimination job at the west edge of the city.

In other business transacted last night, council appropriated $400 from the general fund to finance redecorating and painting the health department offices and the council chamber at the city building.

Transferred $125 from the public recreation equipment fund to the summer park recreation program to help finance the playground program.

Authorized Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff to sell an old addressing machine in the water and garbage department for not less than $30 and find a storage place for an old fire truck now at Central station until it can be disposed of or turned into usable equipment.

Council referred to its finance committee a request from the Liberty park association for the transfer of $1,000 from the park's building fund for financing grading and terracing of the hill to the east of the park shelter house.

At a caucus session preceding the meeting, Mayor W. J. Locke turned the 1944 budget requests for city departments, totaling approximately $331,000, over to the finance committee. Council will act on the budget in July

A protest against her $228 assessment for improving Arlington avenue was submitted to council by Lila B Schraedly, 144 Wood street, owner of a vacant lot with 180-foot frontage on Arlington avenue. She said the proprety is valued at only $180 for taxation purposes.

A claim against the city for $37.50 for repairing a furnace at the home of W. B. Campbell, 658 Harter avenue, was filed with council. Campbell said his furnace was damaged when water from a sewer backed into his basement.

FACES SENTENCE

LISBON —(INS— William Redmelovich, 56, of Canton, today faced a prison sentence for manslaughter. A jury in Columbiana county common pleas court last night found him guilty of shooting Frank Urich, 34.

MOTHER DRAWS SUSPENDED TERM

Accused of leaving her three-year-old daughter alone at home Thursday evening, Mrs. Martha Ritchie of 443 Wayne street, appeared in juvenile court yesterday and was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence.

Complaint was made by the defendant's neighbors who heard the child crying, Mrs. Marie Menchan, county humane officer, who remained with the child until the mother returned, said.

The father, John Ritchie, 282 Wayne street, told officers he and Mrs. Ritchie were divorced Thursday and that custody of the girl was awarded the mother.

DANCE REVUE, 'RHYTHM IN PARK,' GIVEN BEFORE BIG AUDIENCE

One hundred and 35 children participated in the seventh annual students' revue, "Rhythm In the Park," presented by the Marguerite Speas Dance studio last night at Senior high school auditorium

The performance was sponsored by the Co-operative club as a benefit for the Mansfield school for the deaf. The auditorium was filled for the presentation.

Colorful costumes and trick lighting helped make the revue an elaborate presentation. Strobliting which shows only objects specially painted made an impressive setting.

One of the highlight numbers of the show was the "June Wedding" with Nancy Lee Hamman as the bride in traditional white and Ted Linham as the groom.

Most of these children were under school age and wore clever modernistic costumes in the pastel shades. Joan Beard was the songstress; Vaughn Bumpus, best man; and Jimmy Scheiber, preacher. Others participating were Rex Brock, Kathleen Bolin, Judy Bolin, Martha Robertson, Rob Stauffer, Barbara Yeager, Carol Sahler, Sally DeWoody, Jack Eichre, Mary Louise Bosh, Linda Pritchard, Dorothy George, Julia Ann Mowry, Donna Dee Davis, Shirley Berlo, Bertha Workman, Mary Lou Herlihy, Sally Weirich, Mary Lou Workman, Mona Lou Wissinger, Marcilyn Lantz and Dana Lee Pataky.

The "firefly" number was another attractive presentation with small youngsters in yellow ballet costumes, dancing with flowered hoops. This was a strobliting act with only the hoops, their hats, toe shoes and collars showing Taking part were Diane Funston, Susanne Warner, Nancilee Clark, Diane Hayward, Katherine Beaty, Gloria Sellers, Sandra Searlos and Martha Robertson The finale was a military number with Carolyn Piper dressed as Uncle Sam She has also danced the Yankee Doodle Dandy number.

Other children in the revue were Terry Stoodt, Jacquelne Pilot Elaine Mash, Betty Bauman, Robert Schrack Carol Edmonds, Karon Devers, Jeanne White, Janeen Houston, Shirley Pirrgo, Mary Lou Smith, Muriel Beer, Sandra Baer, Judy Rodey, Kay Jesson Doronda Klein, Shirley Mott, Cynthia May, Rudolph Laubscher Norma Scott, Dick Stafford, Dorothy and Johnny George, Claire Mast, Julia Ann Mowry, Billy Kostoff, Russell Leiter, Billy Edmonds.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—This is perhaps crowning week in Winston Churchill's long public career, for he has returned home with the offensive definitely in Allied hands after three years of refusal to accept defeat, or even compromise, during the darkest days from Dunkirk on. Seldom, I suppose, has a people been able so clearly to trace its survival to the unbreakable courage of one man.

Clapper

Churchill returned from America in January of last year to greet a nation depressed over the loss of Malaya and Singapore. There were deep stirrings of trouble in commons, but he survived. And while he was in America last summer Tobruk fell. For a few days there was a deathless fear that the Axis might crash through Suez and join hands with Japan, coming in from the east, and that all hope of victory might be extinguished for years to come Now Churchill returns from his latest Washington conference with triumphs for the Allied cause—not achieved, it is true, but now certain. Africa has been cleared of the Axis. The knocking of Italy out of the war has begun. The pulverizing of Germany from the air is going on. The French are reunited. Stalin has come into closer collaboration with Roosevelt and Churchill than ever before, closing the last door of hope in Germany that defeat might be escaped through making a separate peace with Russia.

Churchill's return is in effect his victory parade, because while the end of the war is probably many months away, preparations for Germany's defeat have made that event inevitable. We are now in the process of celebrating a psychological victory, in the sense of ending the fear once felt by many that the Allies might have to accept a stalemate.

Such is the progress in the three years from Dunkirk, when Churchill stood with no army and no weapons but only his own courage, and rallied Britain to fight it out. He sent his pitifully small tank force on to the Middle East, and stood Hitler off with nothing but sheer nerve.

It was nerve only that enabled the British coolly to hold back a small force of fighter planes for a desperate defense. It was nerve that enabled Churchill, by his personal force, to muster the latent reserves of the British people. Hitler had prepared for everything except the courage of Churchill. By all the rules of logic the Nazis should be celebrating their third anniversary in London now. Efficiency was not enough. Historians are bound to ponder this thrilling demonstration of the force of one man over the course of the world.

London newspapers for several days have been full of reminiscence, and bad poetry, and historical articles, about Dunkirk and the battle of Britain—reliving the experience of those high days when the death of the nation was so close at hand.

Gratitude toward Churchill is heightened by the man's own physical stamina, recently demonstrated. At his age men do not always recover from pneumonia. Churchill not only didn't even give up his long black cigars, but he was able to knock around on a transatlantic mission that would exhaust men many years younger.

Churchill flew back here from Africa, arriving about 5 a. m. after an all-night flight. He met with the war cabinet in a forenoon session waving to the crowds around 10 Downing street and showing fresh victory smile for the news cameras.

The epic of Winston Churchill is first of all individual, but around his sturdy shoulders rest all the hopes of the British, who, when he took over in the summer of 1940 definitely faced extinction, at the worst, and at the best the break-up of their empire and the imposition on England of such a life as exists in a Nazi colony like Denmark.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

SAN FRANCISCO—The Communists who have been conspiring, under cover of the war, to establish Harry Bridges on the east coast and their sailors' union on the Pacific coast and create a Communist monopoly of all American shipping and dock services, doutlbess will allege that these dispatches have omitted the criticism recently directed at the west coast ship owners by Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, administrator of the War Shipping Administration.

Pegler

To anticipate that, let me say that Admiral Land did criticize the Pacific coast maritime industry board But he did not charge them with any guilt in the inefficiency and congestion in the handling of war cargoes from the west coast docks to the Aleutians and the southwest Pacific He said only that they had not lived up to some of their responsibilities. They had been unco-operative in their anxiety to restore old conditions, to establish the righteousness of their position and maintain their prerogatives, to keep down their costs and anticipate their post-war relations with labor. By quibbling they hindered the board of which they were members.

The union members of the board, on the other hand, had pressed proposals which were trivial or absurd, defended practises, meaning man-wasting and time-wasting methods, which were questionable even in peace and unjustified in war and opposed many proposals which would have increased efficiency in turning ships around and moving supplies to the fighters.

In his statement of Feb. 4, which kicked up a row and brought from Harry Bridges a demand for his removal, Paul Eliel, chairman of the Pacific coast maritime industry board and Admiral Land's representative, did say there had been improvement in the union's methods of supplying labor, and he did acknowledge a real sacrifice by the rank and file longshoremen in spending long hours but without comment on the amount of work done These long hours were necessitated, however, by a shortage of hands which in turn was artificially created by the wasteful restrictions and the slowdown imposed by the union itself Moreover, the men drew overtime at $1.10 an hour for a six-hour day between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. and $1.65 an hour for all other hours of the 24

The ship owners, in the course of the wrangle which eventually prompted Eliel's statement, had described the slow-down methods imposed by Bridges In addition to many mock-work devices and deliberate restrictions on the speed of machinery and limitations of loads hoisted off the docks, they had flatly accused Bridges' men of shooting craps, playing cards, fishing, sleeping, leaving their work to drink coffee or beer and tardiness on arrival and whistle-jumping at the close of their shifts.

These specific complaints were not specifically confirmed, but neither were they denied by either Eliel or Admiral Land and they were reckoned in the study of conditions through which first Eliel and then Land arrived at their condemnation of the union's conduct. They have been standard conduct in increasing degree ever since Bridges became the boss of the west coast docks, for the union's work-program is such that often one group of men is compelled to be idle while another group works.

The ship owners hold, nevertheless, that the individual men are self-respecting Americans who would do a day's work but for the discipline imposed by the union which sets the pace and has the power to starve out any patriot who might want to work faster That, however, falsely presumes that the individuals could work faster than the whole gang if he wanted to He can't If he works faster, he loafs the longer after each operation. And Eliel, in acknowledging minor concessions by the union which, however, still left the production rate at a "pitiful" level, pointed out that all these concessions were merely belated moves toward compliance with the union's contracts.

The one question has been whether Bridges, whom the Communists have lauded as an illustrious soldier of production in the war against fascism, has been loading the ships as fast as he could and the answer is that the production record is terrible The ship owners, who might not be scrupulously fair, estimate that five men are required to do the work of three in San Francisco, the worst port on the coast in the matter of efficiency, and Eliel insisted that the union's claim that ships are turned around here more quickly than on the Atlantic coast is meaningless, because turn-around speed is no measure of speed in loading

The reason is that convoy problems on the east coast obviously are more complicated He studied the data and learned that almost without exception ships remain longer in Atlantic ports after they are loaded and ready to sail. Although ships do remain much longer in Atlantic ports, they are loaded more quickly by the AFL

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I WONDER if anyone besides the Boite Set notices that an entirely new audience has begun to invade the night spots around town from the big Broadway clubs to the smart east side cages. There was a time when almost every evening the same old familiar faces appeared automatically in all the pleasure places

But nowadays—or nowanights—a huge crowd of service men, war workers and youngsters with part time jobs that give them money they have no other use for, are taking tables around town. The sight of large groups of girls—and I don't mean unattractive girls—isiting the Hurricane or the Diobamba or any of the other clubs without escorts is now a familiar one.

Kilgallen

This cafe revolution, so far, has produced only minor effects: a big boom in the sale of fancy drinks (which the scotch-and-soda-or-water drinking cafe habitue never touches) and in the sale of those fancy dolls and teddy bears, formerly purchased only by visiting delegations from Peoria.

The paint-on stocking fashion is now in full swing, and I suppose it's just a matter of time before some bright beauty salon comes along with the logical next step of inducing the gals to have pictures painted on their gams instead of just a drab solid color. Certainly somewhere in cafe society, or along Broadway, or possibly in Hollywood, a bright press agent must be harboring the notion of commissioning Salvatore Dali or maybe Thomas Hart Benton to do the decor for his client's shapely underpinnings.

The possibilities, once this crucial first step is taken, are endless I imagine the beginning will be modest, with pastoral scenes or perhaps caricatures of friends as the subjects, but, given time, an entire new school of art could flourish.

The struggling contemporary Rembrandts and Van Goghs and Cezannes, now living from hand to mouth, will be able to carry on handsomely on the proceeds of a "View of New York Bay at Sunset" done on the stems of some lovely debutante, or a "Skaters In the Park" for some athletic-minded actress.

I find the most immediate effect of the OPA ruling on pleasure cars, buses and taxicabs in New York has been to remind the natives of this town that the city is actually a sprawling collection of tight little communities. A trip from the east to the west side of town, or from the village to the upper west side, is now a complicated adventure, fraught with many perils and always the chance of stumbling on a sudden government regulation en route.

A new regionalism may easily arise from this restriction of movement, with any Gothamite who roams more than a mile away from home finding himself as much outside the circle of his former friends as if he had moved to Brooklyn.

AIM TORPEDOES AT OPA PLANS FOR SUBSIDIES

Senators Want To Know How Far Agency Plans To Go In Rollback Program.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Congressional foes of subsidy payments for farm products aimed a brace of torpedoes today at the administration's plan to sail meat and butter prices back to lower levels.

Members of the senate agriculture committee reported growing support for legislation to prohibit subsidy payments by any government agency without congressional sanction. Other critics, including Senators Smith (D.-S. C.), Bushfield (R.-S. D.) and Aiken (R.-Vt.), declared an effort would be made to incorporate an anti-subsidy provision in a bill to extend the reconstruction finance corporation's borrowing power.

With some senators expressing fear that the cutback on meat and butter prices might be extended later to other foods, the senate banking committee called office of price administration officials for questioning on the extent of the program. OPA already has made known that coffee would be included in the plan.

Before questioning the OPA men, Acting Chairman Bankhead (D.-Ala.) of the banking committee, said:

"We want to know first all the details about the rollback in butter and meat prices, and what was the reason for the order We want to know, too, what the prospects are of having it extended to other foods."

Opponents of the roll back, which averages three cents a pound on meat and five cents a pound on butter, have contended at committee hearings that it would stimulate inflation, decrease production rather than encourage it and squeeze out the small producers who are not cut in on the subsidy payments.

Representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the CIO, in asking President Roosevelt to set up a $2,000,000,000 subsidy program to roll back prices to the level of May 15, 1942—the date on which costs of living adjustments for labor are based—said that while wages were stabilized prices were not

They submitted figures to show that food prices in several cities rose 24 to 150 per cent since January, 1941.

The rollback plan was assailed yesterday by Albert S Goss, master of the national grange, and P. M. Brinker, president of the National Association of Retail Grocers, who declared present OPA policies would lead to ruin and bankruptcy

FARM FINANCE BILL JOCKEYED

Senate Takes Up Disputed Points of $820,000,000 Measure.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—After speedily approving more than 100 amendments to the $820,690,709 agriculture bill, the senate today was prepared to battle its way through a dozen remaining controversial points and send the measure to conference with the house

The bill shouldered and jockeyed its way along a rough legislative path in company with the McKellar confirmation bill, but backers feel they can get it through today, barring unforseen objections.

Sen. Russell (D) Ga., who is in charge of the bill, said he thought there would be little real objection to the increased appropriations for soil conservation, the farm security administration, forest protection and school lunches.

Sen. Byrd (D) Va., however, was not ready to concede passage of the big FSA appropriations and loan funds without opposition.

The measure hit an unexpected snag when Sen Lodge (R) Mass., questioned two small salary increases for departmental officials.

"If we increase one man $200 a year and another man $500 a year we may be setting down a new policy and opening the door for numerous salary advances for many others," Lodge said

Unexpected opposition also is being waged by Sen Taft (R) Ohio, to the $59,000 school lunch fund

The house slashed FSA funds to the bone and consolidated the agency with the Farm Credit Administration because of admitted abuses of lending and credit privileges.

QUARREL ENDS IN DEATH

NEWPORT, R. I.—(AP)—Medical Examiner P. P. Ciarla said today that Mrs. May Nesselrode, 21, wife of Seaman Orville Nesselrode, ended her life by taking poison after a domestic quarrel yesterday. He said the body would be sent to East Liverpool, O., for burial.

Mansfield's youthful fishermen may soon be pulling big ones out of the three lakes in city parks. Under a plan proposed to the city park commission by the Charles Mill Sportsmen's club, large fish would be placed in North lake, Maple lake, and the Liberty park lake by the club in co-operation with the state division of conservation and natural resources. The lakes would be opened later to boys and girls under 16 for fishing without charge. The young fishermen, however, would have to abide by the state fishing laws as to size and number of fish they catch. The sportsmen's club hopes to have the fish tagged with numbers corresponding to tickets issued to city business men who would give prizes to the boys and girls who catch the fish and turn in the tags.

OHIO BARBER GETS REPRIEVE

Full Pardon on Way For Ex-Convict Who Lived 23 Years as Respected Citizen.

(By United Press)

BOISE, Ida.—Gov. C A Bottolfsen today signed an executive order granting a reprieve to an Ohio barber who 23 years ago escaped from the Idaho state prison.

In granting the reprieve, the governor said there was "every chance" a full pardon ultimately would be granted, without further need of appearance, to W. D. Simmons, 44, Findlay, O. Thus, the forgery charge against the ex-convict would be removed and the way cleared for him to return to his home and barber shop in Findlay.

The Idaho governor signed the papers after receiving a "favorable" wire from Harlan F. Burdet, assistant prosecuting attorney of Hancock county where Simmons had lived for 22 years as a respected member of the community.

Under the name of Harry P. Thomas, Simmons escaped from prison Dec 30, 1920, where he was serving a one to 14 year sentence for forgery by "walking away" He had served nearly three years of his sentence. He kept his escape such a closely guarded secret that even his wife whom he married shortly afterward, knew nothing of it.

Recently, however, the Ohio barber confided his secret to his pastor and to his wife, and announced that he planned to return to prison of his own accord to "pay his debt to society" He arrived voluntarily at the Idaho prison last Friday to find that Idaho officials already were seeking to grant him a full pardon

GET READY TO PULL IN YOUR BELT IN 1944

Agriculture Department Sees Lack of Unrationed Foods By Next Fall.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Unless things look up, be ready to change your diet somewhat or pull in your belt, come 1944.

The agriculture department is concerned about the situation in some foods.

Its bureau of economics, in a review, said today there are enough rationed foods on hand, together with expected production, to maintain present eating levels for the remainder of 1943. But here's the rub—unrationed foods are not too plentiful and the anticipated supplies for the fall months are not too favorable That goes for eggs, cereals, fruits and vegetables.

Vegetable output is running about 13 per cent below last year. Early freezes have cut crops of apricots, cherries, peaches, plums and prunes materially below 19[illegible] crop in southern states may be but half of its norma[illegible]

Supplies of eggs in the fall and winter "will be considerably below current levels," the report said.

Livestock may be affected adversely. Unless there are extraordinary grain yields, the present level of production cannot be maintained beyond 1943, it was said Consumption of feed grains now threatens to exceed production.

Butter and cheese stocks are plentiful for this year, however.

Charges Food Policies Haywire

ALBANY, N. Y.—(INS)—Federal farm policies are in direct conflict with the nation's war food needs and food storage has reached a point where a change in farm policies is necessary, the New York State emergency food commission reported today.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey said the report "screams of crisis."

"As is always the case, a nation at war moves from a meat diet to a grain diet," the report said, and demanded federal action to enable the people to make the change without injury to health.

Hog production has increased to a point where there is a hog for every person in the country, Babcock said, because federal farm ceilings make it more profitable for the farmer to feed his hogs than sell his grain on the open market.

Whenever the slightest argument over old-time baseball players is aired in the public prints, there's always a reaction among the fan flock.

So I wasn't surprised when a number of fans told me how well they liked the story about Ed Delahanty in this corner Sunday, and neither was I surprised when one old-time fan called in with his share of the argument.

No dyed-in-the-wool fan of the good old days will ever hold back when he has a word to add. And this is as it should be, and all's right with the world.

"The Sporting News was wrong when it said Mansfield was in the Ohio State league when Ed Delahanty played here," declares this fan, "and Harry Albrecht was wrong when he said it was the Tri-State.

"It was the Inter-State."

Me, I'm just an innocent bystander. I have no record books of those dim, distant days. So let the old-timers argue it out.

"Furthermore," says this telephoning fan, "Ed's youngest brother, Bill, played shortstop for Mansfield later when we were in the Ohio-Pennsylvania league, and Carl McVey ran the O-P team."

Now there, let me remark, must be a fan who is certain of his facts, for keeping track of the Delahanty brothers and being sure that Billy was the youngest, is a trick all in itself.

There were six Delahanty boys playing baseball. Whether there were any more who weren't playing baseball is something I don't know.

One writer on the subject says: "Mother Delahanty gave her baby boys ball bats instead of rattles. In addition to Ed there were Frank, Jim and Joe in the majors, while Tom and Billy played in the minors."

Jim played second base and topped Detroit hitters in the 1909 world series with Pittsburgh.

Maybe if I can get enough old-timers talking, I might have a series of yarns sometime on Mansfield players who have made the big leagues. It should be interesting.

Shutout Twins Blank Birds Twice 1-0.

(By Associated Press)

St. Paul's shutout twins—Pitchers Clay Smith and Art Herring—did it again last night.

The two whitewash wizards, who blanked Minneapolis twice on Memorial day, brushed off the Columbus Red Birds in a night doubleheader at St. Paul by identical scores of 1 to 0.

The triumphs brought St. Paul's shutout record to eight for the season—the best whitewashing record of any team in the American Association—and gave them a record of 10 victories in their last 16 games.

Milwaukee skipped into second position by beating league-leading Indianapolis for the third straight time, 5 to 3. But the Brewers' fifth victory in a row was protested by Manager Ownie Bush after an interpretation of the ground rules had eliminated two Indian runs in the fourth inning.

Minneapolis climbed from fifth to third in the standings with a 5-4 decision which sent Toledo into lower berth No. 5.

The St. Louis Cards in an exhibition beat Kansas City, 5-0.

Big League Players Get Rest

Tight Schedule Runs Into Loose Spot.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE major leagues drew up what they called a "tight" schedule this year to curtail all possible travel, but their program has run into a "loose" spot this week even though it doesn't call for added mileage.

From last Sunday until next Saturday the total activity in baseball's big leagues amounts to only 15 games. One of these was played last night as the Brooklyn Dodgers stopped off at Pittsburgh on their way home from the west and paddled the Pirates 4 to 1.

Fred Fitzsimmons, whose lone loss to Pittsburgh in three years came earlier this spring, was in good form as he scattered seven hits and smothered all the Buccaneer matters except Frankie Gustine. Gustine collected four hits, one of which was a triple that led to a run in the first inning.

But the Dodgers solved Southpaw Wally Hebert in the eighth for four runs on a walk and four hits, the last of which was a double by Bob Bragan.

The victory returned the Dodgers to a virtual tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for the National league lead although the Redbirds continued to lead in the percentage column, .650 to .630. The Dodgers have won three more games than St. Louis, but also have lost three more.

Today all clubs in both leagues are idle and some of those which also had yesterday off will play only one game before Saturday, when the full forces will be resumed.

* * *

There will be three games in each league tomorrow, the National bringing together Boston at Brooklyn in a twilight affair. Pittsburgh at St. Louis and Philadelphia at New York while the American league bill of fare calls for Chicago at Detroit in a twilight tussle, St. Louis at Cleveland and Washington at Boston.

Pep Defends Feather Title

Meets Sal Bartolo In Boston Ring Tonight.

BOSTON — (U.P.) — A double-barrelled pugilistic gamble will be staged tonight at Braves field when Wee Willie Pep makes his first defense of the featherweight crown against Boston's Sal Bartolo for a guarantee of $30,000.

Promoters optimistically predict that the tilt between the two young Italians will draw a gate of $75,000 and a crowd of 25,000, figures that would establish new records for New England fights.

Pep had been favored to retain his crown—recognized only in Massachusetts and New York—for the past two weeks at 8-5. But last night the betting mysteriously lengthened to 14-5, favoring Pep, thereby causing an investigation by Bartolo's manager, Lou Schiro, who claimed to have heard reports that the bout was "in the bag" for pep.

However, close odds were expected in their first meeting—a 10-round non-title contest on April 9—Bartolo gave Pep such a hard fight that the split decision went to Pep after tabulations of the three Boston officials totaled 285 points for Willie to 284 for Bartolo.

The title fight is slated for 8:30 p. m. (EWT)—instead of the usual 10:00 p. m.—because of dimout regulations. There will be no broadcast.

ARMY MEN RESIGN FROM COMMISSION

TAMPA, Fla.—(U.P.)—A military ruling against army men serving on commissions sponsoring professional boxing today had forced the resignations of five army members of the 116th field artillery boxing commission, the body which sponsored last Tuesday's Tony Galento-Herbie Katz fight here.

The five, including Capt. Steve O'Connell, who charged Katz with taking a "dive" after the 25-second knockout credited to Galento, resigned yesterday.

Moose Golf Loop Formed

Eight Team League Opens Season Monday.

Moose golf league was organized last evening at Coolridge golf course with Ray Shively elected president and Frank Jocha secretary.

The league will play on Monday evenings starting next week. Tee time was set for 5:30, and forfeit time at 6:30, giving an hour of starting time for the eight teams.

* * *

Next Monday's schedule: Fellowship vs. Prelates; Stewards vs. Governors; Managers vs. Treasurers; and Janitors vs. Secretaries.

The teams as they were lined up last night are:

Fellowship—Joe Mayer, Art Kocher, Bill Carter and Red Zimmerman.

Stewards—Ray Malaska, Ray Kindinger, Art Hilborn, Herb Doolittle.

Managers—Frank Jocha, Roy Crawford, Jim Anderson, Abe Beilstein.

Janitors—Fred Huntsman, George Percy, Paul Crowe, Ray Shively.

Secretaries—Dick Gaubatz, Matz Fisher, Roy Bose, Fred Harmon.

Treasurers—Mike Reif, Rex Hess, Lee Tivener, Andy Stash.

Governors—Phil Schwaner, Mike Hammer, Jim Morgan, Bob Hilborn.

Prelates—Pete Marcoff, Ira Metcalf, Fritz Vogel, Leo Graham.

DURATION CROWN PLACED ON BLOCK

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—The "duration" light heavyweight boxing title goes on the block tonight in Cleveland stadium when Champion Jimmy Bivins makes his first defense of the crown against Lloyd Marshall in a 15-round bout. Bivins was a 2 to 1 favorite in late betting, the odds having returned to that quotation after a mild dip over the week-end.

The two Cleveland Negro battlers wound up training with light drills yesterday. They were pronounced fit for the outdoor show which is expected to draw some 20,000 fans.

Meets Pep For Feather Title

Sal Bartolo, Boston feather, gets his chance at Willie Pep's feather crown tonight in Boston. Bartolo, Italian-American, has been fighting professionally since 1937 and has met many of the better 126-pound ring stars.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The old guy who didn't look it leaned across the table to capture the listener's undivided attention. . . . "Interested in racing?" he demanded. "I can tell you a lot about it. First skating race I ever won was at Latonia race track." . . . The question was surprising one to hear at an ice rink on a hot spring afternoon but after a few minutes with Earle (Skater) Reynolds you come to expect almost anything. . . . Besides, the idea of skating at a horse track seemed intriguing and you suggested that he tell you about it.

INTRODUCING SKATER

By that time Reynolds was watching the ice skaters practicing their steps on the smooth Iceland rink . . . Skater is 75 years old, with bushy gray hair, but he's still young enough to skate and to tutor a couple of troupes of roller skaters he has touring with the big circus . . . He has been a jockey, speed-skating champion, hockey player. For ten years he was personal betting commissioner for John W. (Bet-a-Million) Gates and as a theatrical man he taught Anna Held to perform on roller skates and staged what he says was the first ice-skating act on a theater stage, back in 1905 . . .

A STRAPPING LAD

"About that race," Reynolds resumed, "there were three of us jockeys at Latonia and we got up a race. We all wore riding boots, of course, and my father—he was the first man for whom Tod Sloan ever rode a race — was smart enough to strap my skates on tight. The others couldn't keep their skates on those light boots, so I won easily."

NOT QUITE MILLION

The fabulous John W. Gates' nickname may have been an exaggeration, but Reynolds gives him credit for making the largest wager ever made at a race track. "It was on Sysonby at Brighton Beach on July 29, 1905," skater said positively. "Mr. Gates bet $420,000. Syson opened at 3 to 10 and Mr. Gates backed him off the boards at 1 to 5 . . . He won $92,000 on that race—and was $12,000 loser on the day . . . He bet $50,000 on a horse ridden by Ambrose Clark in the jumping race and the horse fell at the first jump."

Indians Buy Outfielder

Hank Edwards Has Broken Collar Bone.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Outfielder Pat Seerey today became the second new player the Cleveland Indians have acquired in less than a week.

Club Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh announced the purchase of the 20-year-old fly-chaser from the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., farm team of the Eastern League last night after an injury to Hank Edwards reduced the Tribe's outfield roster to three players.

Edwards suffered a broken collarbone in a collision with Jeff Heath in Philadelphia last Thursday but the extent of his injury was not determined until he returned from the eastern trip. Dr. M. H. Castle, the club's physician, said Edwards would be out of action for at least four weeks.

* * *

Single and 4-F in the draft Seerey trained with the Indians at Lakeland, Fla., last spring and was farmed to Cedar Rapids, where he hit .303. He has appeared in 23 games with Wilkes-Barre and, although batting only .256, was tied for the league lead in runs batted in with 22. He bats and throws right-handed.

The Redskins secured first baseman Mike Rocco from Buffalo of the International League last Friday in a trade for Otto Denning and Eddie Turchin.

Idle yesterday and today, the Indians open a five-game series with the St. Louis Browns tomorrow.

Dahlgren, Stephens Retain Stick Lead

NEW YORK—(AP)—Babe Dahlgren of the Phillies and Vernon (Junior) Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, making their hits count till their draft boards count them in for heavy hitting of another sort, still are leading the batters in the major leagues.

Stephens left the Browns last week to answer an induction call, but found that he had a few more days left, and rejoined the club in the East. His hitting has been up and down since his return, but today his average was .369, just seven points under his mark of a week ago. He still was far out in front of his American League rivals.

* * *

Dahlgren, who has been told he probably would be called for induction in July, slipped one point to .367, but also retained an ample lead in the National League.

Oris Hockett of Cleveland continued the runner-up in the American League with .343, a thirteen-point rise over the last week.

LEM FRANKLIN SAYS HE'S THROUGH AGAIN

CHICAGO—(AP)—Lem Franklin, the dusky Cleveland heavyweight who once was considered a contender for Joe Louis' crown, said today he was through with prize-fighting after losing seven straight fights in a comeback campaign.

Franklin's latest defeat came last night at the hands of Gus Dorazio, Philadelphia veteran, who scored a lopsided 10-round decision over the Cleveland Negro.

Franklin, holding an eight-pound weight advantage at 203. Failed to land a solid blow on his bobbing opponent and lost every round.

Stuhldreher Coaches Stars

Hopes To Upset Washington Redskins.

CHICAGO — (INS) — Harry Stuhldreher, head football coach and athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, today was named head coach of the College All-Stars who will play the champion Washington Redskins in the annual all-star football game.

The contest this year will be staged at Dyche Stadium, Evanston, Ill., instead of at Soldier Field, Chicago, as formerly, and will be played the night of Aug. 25.

Stuhldreher, who last season gave Wisconsin its most successful football team since 1912, and was not dismayed by the task before him.

"The Washington Redskins in 1942 were a great football team," he admitted. "They had to be to win the championship of professional football from the Chicago Bears. I am hopeful however that we can spring as big a surprise on the Redskins as they did on the Bears."

* * *

The Badger coach will have a staff of four prominent college coaches from other parts of the country to aid him. The college squad will report to him Aug. 7 at Northwestern University.

Stuhldreher, who became coach at Wisconsin in 1936, was quarterback of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen" team in 1924.

Score 7 Runs In 10th Frame

Cates Wins Overtime Game With Big Rally.

Cates scored seven runs in the 10th inning for a 14-7 victory over Johns park as the Park Softball league opened its season last evening.

Maple Lake edged North Lake 3-1 in a well played game, with Regula letting the losers down with three hits.

Prospect swamped John Todd 20-7 in the other tilt, scoring its runs in big batches. Laver and Hollingsworth hit home runs.

Remember when we told you in one of our ads recently that there was plenty cookin' in Akron?

Well, sir, that wasn't the half of it. Because today, right in our store, we have on display General Tires manufactured from American-Made rubber!

They're something General's research chemists, engineers and production specialists are mighty proud of. They represent months of untiring effort on their part to conquer America's rubber problem, to say nothing of a quarter of a century of learning how to put more quality into a tire.

You'll find General's famous Silent-Grip tread design. Their bodies have General's same extra strong cord construction, as always. And, of course, these General Tires are built by General's same craftsmen who have never known anything but the highest quality.

We cordially invite you to come in today and see these American-Made rubber Generals . . . the tires that someday, when the rubber crisis is over, will be available to everybody without restriction.

New Redlegs Given Chance

Perform In Series of Exhibition Games.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A three-day breathing spell, in which the Cincinanti Reds will play exhibition games with Camp Atterbury, Ind., today, Fort Benjamin Harrison, tomorrow, and Great Lakes Thursday will give Manager Bill McKechnie a good look at some new playing material he recently acquired.

* * *

The Deacon is particularly interested in Jack Niemes, the Cincinnati boy who pitched hitless ball in a relief role for one inning against the Brooklyn Dodgers in his first appearance in the big show.

Dain Clay, outfielder obtained from the Philadelphia Phils Sunday, will join the team today in Indianapolis and McKechnie plans to spot him in centerfield in the exhibition tilts.

Lonnie Frey and Bucky Walters will not make the sideshow swing with the team. Lonnie was ordered to remain here by his dentist who is repairing the damage done when the little second basemen was struck in the mouth by a ball thrown prior to a game in New York three weeks ago.

Walters is suffering from an intestinal disturbance but both will rejoin the team when the Reds go back to the National League tussle Friday against the Cubs in the first of four games.

KENT STATE QUITS GRID FOR DURATION

KENT—(AP)—Kent State university has cancelled its 1943 football schedule and will abandon the sport for the duration, Head Coach Don Starn said today.

Starn has accepted a commission of lieutenant (senior grade) in the navy and reports for duty July 1. Dr. A. Sellow Roberts, head of the history department and former Kent wrestling coach, has been named to direct any athletic program the golden flashes may have during the war. Roberts said the university would attempt to have basketball, baseball and wrestling if enough male students are available.

Borrow at Household without fuss or bother on your salary, furniture or car—without endorsers. Pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Example: a $50 loan repaid in 6 monthly instalments of $9.24 each costs $5.44; but if repaid in one month costs only $1.50. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 1½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100 but not exceeding $300, and ½% per month on any remainder.

STOCK LEADERS CONTINUING ON LOWER TREND

Average Price of All Issues on Big Board Increases $1.51 In Month.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks continued to edge into slightly lower ground in today's market although offerings were relatively slack.

On the offside at the opening were Chrysler, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Bethlehem, General Electric, Southern Pacific, Radio Corp., Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Texas Co. and International Telephone. Exceptions with minor gains were Goodyear, Great Northern, and American Airlines.

Market optimists found some satisfaction in the stock exchange compilation disclosing the average price of all stocks listed on the big board increased $1.51 last month to $32.96 compared with $22.40 at the end of May, 1942.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Lack of demand at the opening today resulted in lower prices for all grain futures. There was little in the news to affect the market and trading was light.

Wheat opened unchanged to ½ cent lower than the previous close, July $1.44½-⅝, September $1.44⅝-¾, and then held within a narrow range. Rye started unchanged to ⅜ off and then extended the retreat.

WOMEN LOOM IN CITY PRIMARY

Democrats Mention Two as Prospects For Posts In City Council.

Howard Miller, council president, announced today he would not seek re-election, leaving the Democrats with another place to fill on their ticket. Sought earlier as a candidate for mayor, Miller said he had decided to devote all his time to his business as assistant cashier of the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank.

The other Democratic city officials, including Auditor Paul L. Kelley, Treasurer Earle K. Troll, and Councilmen Fred Miller of the Fifth ward and Michael Mihalick, Fourth ward, are expected to run again.

Atty. Glenn W. Marriott, former county prosecutor and mayor of Shelby, is being counted on by Democratic party leaders as their candidate for mayor although he has not officially announced his candidacy.

On the Republican side, Mayor W. J. Locke has already announced for another term and the seven councilmen are entering the field again. The Republicans, however, are having trouble finding candidates for city auditor, treasurer, and solicitor and council from the Fourth and Fifth wards, usually Democratic.

Candidates for municipal offices have only three more days to file their petitions with the county election board which still had not received a petition today from a Mansfield candidate.

UNION TRUCKERS DELAY FREIGHT

ODT Charges They Turn Back Ferry Shipments.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— A "tremendous amount" of freight shipments is being held up by defiant union truckers who refuse to use an over-water route between Cleveland and Detroit, the Office of Defense Transportation reported today.

Members of the Teamsters' union (AFL) turned back trucks which approached the big ferry freighter City of Munsing for loading last night, ODT officials reported. The ferry was scheduled to leave again tonight for Detroit, but officials said it was improbable she would take on a load of trailers.

CHURCHILL SAYS INVADERS WILL STRIKE EUROPE

Declares Amphibious Attacks Approaching; Air War To Be Continued.

been killed, making total enemy casualties in Tunisia about 300,000. Tunisia and Stalingrad were the greatest military disasters that ever have befallen Germany, he said.

"The suddenness of the collapse of these great numbers of brave and skillful fighting men with every form of excellent equipment must be regarded as significant and in a sense characteristic of the German psychology generally after Jena and after the last war," he declared, "but no undue expectations should be placed on it. We prepared to win this war by hard fighting and, if necessary, by hard fighting alone."

Napolean defeated the Prussians at Jena Oct. 14, 1806.

Other points made by Churchill to the cheering commons in his first long review since Feb. 11 were these:

1. "Taking some of the weight off Russia and giving more speedy and effective aid to China . . . are never absent for one moment from our thoughts and aims." He expressed regrets that no recent conference had yet been arranged with Marshal Stalin.

2. "The might of America is deployed far over the Pacific and is laying an ever stronger grip on the outlying defenses of Japan and offering every moment to the Japanese fleet the supreme challenge of sea power."

3. That no pressure was exerted to bring the French together.

4. That Allied troops and commanders were eager for "the most intense and violent" attack on the Axis.

5. That the American Second corps in Tunisia captured 33,000 Germans and 4,000 Italians. British First army casualties were 23,500 and the Eighth army casualties since crossing from Tripolitania were 11,500. Only 638 enemy troops escaped, mostly by air.

Optimistic but restrained, his statement served to confirm the British public's summer hope that a large scale Allied invasion of Europe is not far off.

Warning against over-confidence, Churchill told commons that much hard fighting lay ahead before final victory could be achieved.

He made it plain, that plans laid in Washington called for "the most intense and violent" attack upon the Axis and referred to "operations now impending in the European theater" as if they were a foregone conclusion.

The plans, he indicated, embrace all aspects of the global war, but he reported particularly that Allied commanders in North Africa were "resolute in the plans they have made" and that their troops are eager for the attack at the earliest moment.

Churchill referred to the Tunisian victory as one of the greatest military disasters that had ever befallen Germany—comparable to the Nazi rout at Stalingrad—and said there was no doubt Hitler had expected his armies in North Africa to hold out until August.

Declaring that the "Germans seem to be staking their hopes on the U-boat war," he asserted that Allied successes in overcoming this menace may well prove the "fateful milestone" in the battle to smash Hitler's power.

And he gave asurance that nothing can turn Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia "from our endeavor to accomplish the complete destruction of our foes by bombing from the air in addition to other means."

Commons Cheers Eisenhower Pledge

LONDON —(INS)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, American commander-in-chief of Allied forces in North Africa, promised today in thanking the house of commons for a message of congratulations that he would strive for a greater effort of achievement in the future until "complete and final destruction of the Axis throughout the world is attained."

The members of commons cheered the reading of the message sent in reply to a note from that body on May 18 congratulating Gen. Eisenhower on the successful conclusion of the North African campaign.

Reds Beat Off Nazi Patrol Thrusts

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—The Red army beat off a series of sharp enemy patrol thrusts along an 800-mile segment of the Russian front today as German and Soviet air fleets traded blows in a struggle for aerial supremacy.

Russian long-range bombers concentrated their might on the railroad junction of Unecha Sunday night, touching off many heavy explosions and fires among munitions dumps, arms stores and concentrations of trains. Only one plane was lost.

German planes countered with two attempts at large-scale raids on Gorki Saturday and Sunday nights. Anti-aircraft guns and night fighters turned back many of the bombers before they reached their objectives, but others broke through and caused some damage and casualties.

KIWANIS-ROTARY CLUBS TO HEAR BRITISH CONSUL AT LUNCHEON

E. J. Bisiker, British consul in Cleveland, will speak Thursday at a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs at 11:50 a. m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Bisiker came to the British consulate office in Cleveland in 1940 and since that time has returned twice to Great Britain to visit A. E. F. and other Allied troops stationed there and to talk with leaders and representatives of the Allied governments stationed there.

Before coming to America Bisiker was engaged in the manufacture of metal powders having founded the British Metal Powders Ltd. in 1934. He served more than six years as a lieutenant in the Royal Marines and served actively at sea during World War 1.

He is being brought as guest speaker to this meeting through the efforts of Lester Redding, program chairman.

PEACE HOPES GROW DIMMER

Collapse of Negotiations Is Feared as Southern Operators Hold Out.

previously warned the miners and operators against "hidden wage increases," although endorsing "genuine" portal pay.

4. Petroleum coordinator for war Ickes sent a telegram to Lewis demanding that both miners and operators act "to the end that there be no interruption of work. . . . So that the nation can be assured of the supply of coal which it needs."

He told Lewis, in the message, that the strike had cost the nation 11,000,000 tons of coal and provided a threat to warm homes next winter.

Re-submission of the case of the WLB would be certain to bring serious complications. Lewis time and again has defied the board, assailed it as prejudiced against the miners and refused to appear before a panel hearing on the coal dispute.

Even before Burke's statement, however, it had been reported that many of the southern operators were determined to hold out for a WLB ruling. The board has asked for a progress statement by tomorrow, giving the mine owners a chance to report a deadlock and ask for direction.

Some of the operators are said to fear that, if they agree to Lewis' offer or make a similar one of their own and a contract is signed, they will stand little chance of obtaining a coal price increase from OPA. They were reported to feel, however, that they could get higher prices to offset added labor costs under a WLB-directed settlement.

Northern coal operators, led by Charles O'Neill, were represented to be amenable to settling the coal wage dispute through direct negotiation with the union.

Lewis was expected to try again today to conclude an agreement before the WLB intervened. He previously charged that the agency blocked an imminent settlement of the dispute last week by halting negotiations because of the strike.

Coal Production Back at Capacity

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— Production of vital soft coal reached full capacity in western Pennsylvania today for the first time in a week as some 800 employes at the Pittsburgh coal company's Midland mine — last "holdouts" against John L. Lewis' back-to-work edict —voted to end their strike.

John Busarello, president of UMW District 5, said the miners at Midland had "changed their minds" about defying Lewis, and had agreed to return to the pits without a new contract pending continued negotiations between the Appalachian coal operators and the union.

Nevertheless, despite the 100 per cent return to work, steel production in the vast Pittsburgh area continued to feel the paralyzing effects of the work stoppage.

Calls Hush-Hush Meeting Example Of Allied Unity

WASHINGTON —(AP)— When the war is won, President Roosevelt believes the United Nations will remain "united for the solution of the many and difficult problems of peace."

That the Allies really are united Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday, was "demonstrated beyond question" by the "epoch-making success" of the international food conference just ended. The conference, he said, brought to the world a new hope for attaining freedom from want and fear.

Addressing the delegates of 44 nations in the White House east room, the president said:

"You have surveyed with courage and with realism the magnitude of the problems and have reached unanimous agreement that they can, and must—and will—be solved. And we are winning by action and unity."

The conference, the president said was "a living demonstration" of the methods by which "the conversations of nations of like mind * * * can and will give practical application to the principles of the Atlantic charter."

racket' bill after it had once been defeated in the house and in helping defeat the obnoxious pension bill for judges, after it had slid through the house by a narrow margin.

"It's worth noting, also, that he was the only member of the judiciary committee, consisting entirely of lawyers who had the intestinal fortitude to vote against the judges' pension bill when it was before the committee.

"This was a sample of the independent thinking that pretty generally characterized his attitude through the session. For the futures book, he gives promise of being better known if he continues to serve in the legislature."

Besides Catlett, the other legislators similarly honored were Sen. E. E. Addison, Franklin county; Sen. Carl D. Sheppard, Summit, Rep. Willis I Cory, Seneca, Rep. Howard Metzenbaum, Cuyahoga, Sen. Move Waits Only Final 'Yes' or 'No' Answer as New Gas Problems Arise.

er convenient public places where applicants may pick them up and after filling them out mail, not bring, them with their present books to the board between specified dates designated on the alphabetical mailing schedule.

This schedule calls for the mailing of applications of persons whose surnames begin with A to E between June 22 and June 26, F. to L between June 27 and July 1, N to R between July 2 and July 7, and S. to Z between July 8 and July 12.

Beelman today made an appeal for volunteer workers to assist the regular ration board clerks in the filling out of books and mailing to applicants as the applications are received. He asks all persons interested to telephone to the board giving their names, phone numbers and the hours best for them to work.

Applicants for B and C book renewals can save themselves and the board a great deal of time if they will mail their applications with their tire inspection blanks to the board in place of bringing them, Beelman said.

He also emphasized the fact today that additional canning sugar cannot be issued to those who make application after using stamps 15 and 16 unless each War Ration Book No. 1 in the family accompanies the application.

Meanwhile Mansfield police today were flooded with reports of lost food and gasoline ration books. Loss of 15 food books and six gasoline ration books was reported to officers in a 24-hour period yesterday and last night.

C. C. Beelman, ration board chairman, blamed carelessness for the loss of books, explaining that many shoppers leave their books on store counters and motorists often lose books thrown into the dash compartment of their car or on the seat. He said he doubted that many persons wilfully report their books lost just to obtain new ones.

Some persons have turned back their extra ration books to the board after finding books they had reported as lost, Beelman said.

Pilot Swims Ashore As Plane Falls In Lake.

YOUNGSTOWN —(AP)— When the wheels of his training plane caught on utility wires, Harry Johnson, 19-year-old Akron, O., air cadet at Youngstown college, went plunging into Yankee lake, 20 miles north of here yesterday.

He crawled out of the partly-submerged plane and swam to shore.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The war department announced today the award of its soldier's medal to Sergeant Hayes S. Noble of North Kenova, Lawrence county, O., for preventing a serious fire in the Battery Motor park at North Ireland.

COMMANDOS HIT ITALIAN ISLAND, AXIS REPORTS

Swift Blow at Lampedusia By British Seen In Stories From Rome and Berlin.

by the Associated Press said the attack occurred last night and was a Commando raid carried out by "about five companies" of British troops.

This report claimed that several Allied landing craft were sunk and asserted forces which had landed "were destroyed."

The German high command communique stated that "the enemy yesterday tried to take the Mediterraneon island of Lampedusa by a coupe de main. The Italian garrison repulsed the attack, sank several boats and destroyed enemy troops which had landed."

Declaring the attempt failed "100 per cent," the German radio added:

"If the Allies by this attempt intended to test the resistance of Italian troops when they are defending their home soil, then the Italians have stood the test in a brilliant manner."

The German broadcast said Berlin military quarters had "no doubts" it was "a serious landing attempt."

The Italian communique said "considerable damage" was caused by enemy bombers in raids against Messina, ferry port at the eastern tip of Sicily, and on Trapani, also on Sicily, while "uninterrupted enemy air activity" was acknowledged over Pantelleria.

Lampedusa is a one-town island of bare rock and a few fertile valleys, measuring about seven miles by two, and lies some 100 miles west of British Malta.

Il Porto, on the southern coast, provides its only harbor, but even this can accommodate only small craft. Several scattered beaches on the southeastern coast provide other sites for beachheads, but the rest of the coastline is protected by high cliffs.

Pantelleria Again Deluged By Bombs

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—The concentrated strength of the Allied Northwest African Air Forces poured a deluge of bombs and fire onto Italy's sentinel island of Pantelleria yesterday.

Formations of every type of plane, from Flying Fortresses to small Warhawks, flew to the attack, Allied headquarters said, giving rise to smoke clouds which soared 4,000 feet above the battered island and drifted wide over the sea.

Eleven enemy planes were shot down in the onslaught when outnumbered defenders tried to ward off the waves of attacks. Two Allied planes were lost, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique said.

Axis Issues 'Suicide Order' to Defenders

LONDON—(INS)—The Axis high command, desperately attempting to hold off what it regards as an imminent Allied invasion at some point along the Mediterranean, was disclosed today to have issued a "suicide order" to the air forces on tiny Pantelleria island to beat off Allied raids at any cost.

The order was said to have been issued by Nazi Field Marshall Albert Kesselring, Axis air commander in the Mediterranean.

Simultaneously reports from the continent said that the Germans now expect a joint attack against Norway by Soviet forces from the east and sea-borne Allied troops from the west as part of the campaign to invade the occupied continent.

(A Melbourne dispatch to Reuter's quoted Air Vice Marshall Adrian Trever Cole, air advisor of the combined staff which controlled the Allied Commando raid on Dieppe last Aug. 19 as declaring that "a landing on the French coast is not only possible but probably before long.")

Malta Planes Hit Southern Italy

VALETTA, Malta—(INS)—Heavy new blows against southern Italy and Sicily by British Malta-based warplanes were announced today in an RAF headquarters communique.

Speedy fighter-bombers yesterday dropped explosives among warehouses in the Pozzallo area of southeastern Sicily, the official statement said.

This assault was followed after dark by intruder plane raids against road transport in the Comiso region, also in southeastern Sicily, and against railroad objectives near Cape Stilo, midway in the Italian boot, on the eastern shore.

Office Girls Continue Revolt Against Slacks Order.

DETROIT —(AP)— A revolt among office workers at the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor company against company-decreed slacks continued today as a group of the girls reported at their desks clad in dresses, skirts and blouses or suit combinations. As on Monday they were given no work to do.

Local 400 of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) said there were 60 girls in the group today. A company spokesman said there were only 11 today against 27 yesterday.

them, were left on sidewalks. Ambulances took three to emergency hospitals, where they were treated and re-clad. None was seriously hurt.

Order was restored after military authorities declared out of bounds the entire downtown strip of Main street, where most of the disturbances took place, and Chief Horrall ultimately released the 1,000 riot squad officers from duty. Officials at the Chavez Ravine Naval armory cancelled all leaves.

International aspects of the disorders were recognized yesterday at a meeting of the citizens' committee for Latin-American youth with representatives of the police and sheriff's office, after jail booking records showed Mexican names predominated among arrested zoot suiters.

Dr. George Gleason, committee member, declared it "regrettable" that a small group should bring into ill-repute the city's Mexican population.

"The great majority of these people," he said, "are law abiding, respectable and cultured."

U. S. Disappointed At Argentine Stand

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Disappointment was evidenced in official circles in Washington today over the failure of the new Argentine military government to show greater support for the Allied cause.

The new regime's intimation in its formal statement that it intended to keep Argentina strictly neutral in the world conflict led to fear that there may be little change in that Latin-American republic's foreign policy.

American diplomatic recognition of the new government, headed by Gen. Pedro Ramirez, was being held up pending more definite evidence that it is firmly in the saddle.

ENGINEER DIES IN TRAIN WRECK

Fireman Injured As Engine Rams Derailed Car.

ALTOONA Pa —(INS)—An engineer was killed and a caboose fireman seriously injured today when a locomotive and four cars of the second section of Pennsylvania passenger train No. 22 crashed into a derailed freight car in the Altoona railroad yards.

The locomotive turned over on its side and dragged the four passenger cars behind it off the tracks, blocking traffic in the yard for several hours. Reports indicated none of the passengers was hurt.

The dead engineer was identified as Francis M. Nichols and the injured fireman was listed as J. W. Dixon, both of Harrisburg.

ADMIRAL KING MEETS NIMITZ

Fleet Chief Confers With U. S. Pacific Commander on New Global Strategy.

Nimitz's presence on the Pacific coast was disclosed when he made a surprise appearance at the University of California's annual commencement exercises at Berkeley, Calif. At that time, however, it was not revealed that King was on the west coast.

Knox was asked by reporters whether King and Marshall were carrying reports to their field officers on the recent British-American conferences in Washington.

"Possibly that would be one very good explanation," Knox replied.

Disclosure by the war department that Marshall had returned from a visit "overseas" increased speculation that final preparations had been completed for a new blow at Axis-held Europe.

Speculation ran high regarding the target of the next Allied offensive thrust with some sources predicting an invasion of the continent but other informed quarters insisting that the assault would be directed against the Italian Mediterranean islands.

Knox had little to say about plans in the Pacific war zone but he asserted that strength of America's fleet in that battle area was being increased "right along—and it's still going on."

The secretary said he had no confirmation of Axis broadcasts that United Nations forces had attempted a landing on the island of Lampedusa in the Mediterranean.

Knox also added that he had no evidence to the effect that the Germans have virtually taken over the Italian fleet which recently sustained another heavy blow when American planes battered three of Mussolini's battleships.

Powerful American, British and French forces were poised for action in the British Isles and North Africa, but conservative military men asserted the next "big show" would be against Sardinia, Sicily or other islands on the Mediterranean route to the continent.

Seizure of these important points would pave the way for a quick thrust into the "soft underbelly" of Europe—Italy, Greece and southern France—in preparation for the knockout against the main enemy strongholds in other parts of Europe.

The war department merely announced that Marshall had returned to the United States "from overseas." But it had been disclosed earlier that Marshall had conferred with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and other British and American leaders in the Mediterranean theater.

FDR Calls For Report On African Talks

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Roosevelt called Gen. George C. Marshall to the White House to hear the army chief of staff report on his trip to North Africa to reportedly map European invasion plans.

Gen. Marshall, who had traveled to North Africa with Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England after Churchill's recent trip to the United States, arrived back in Washington yesterday, and Mr. Roosevelt arranged a conference with the general for noon today.

WILLKIE URGES UNITY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Americans can speed the day of victory through unity, determination and selflessness, Wendell Willkie said last night in a message read to 20,000 persons at a Negro freedom rally.

BOND GOAL DOUBLED

CLEVELAND —(INS)— It was disclosed today that Cleveland's May campaign to sell $8,000,000 in war bonds had been doubly successful with a total sale of $19,326,731.55

POLICE and fire protection are a vital part of any town's life, yet how seldom one gives thought to their importance! We just take a policeman or a fireman, and the security they represent, for granted.

And sometimes, it seems that the railroad, too, is thought of in much the same way. People forget what the railroad means to a town's cultural and business life—and they forget the thousands of workers and wealth of material it requires to keep the railroad running. Yet, a moment of serious thinking will convince anyone that the absence of the railroad would make a vast difference in his town's way of life.

Today, B & O's job is Victory. But, while we're giving that job top priority, your town's civilian needs are being cared for, too. And there are sixty thousand of us who are going to see to it that, when the war is won, your town's interests come first with the B & O.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JUNE 8, 1943.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is also applicable to problems of juvenile delinquency.

Don't neglect to mention the first radishes or onions that come from your own Victory garden—aren't they wonderful!

According to a psychiatrist "there are two distinct Hitlers"—which is remindful of two Mr. Hydes without any Dr. Jekyll.

President Tells About Food Plans

AT LEAST a hint of the action taken at the secret international food conference in Hot Springs, Va., was found in yesterday afternoon's talk by President Roosevelt to conference delegates assembled at the White House.

Greater industrial production, greater purchasing power, elimination of trade barriers and solution of matters of international finance are all linked up with food problems, the president told the delegates—and all of these, he said, require and will receive united attention.

Pending a permanent United Nations organization, an interim commission is to be set up, with headquarters in Washington.

"Our objective can be simply stated," said the president. "It is to build for ourselves, for all men, a world in which each individual human being shall have the opportunity to live out his life in peace to work productively, earning at least enough for his actual needs and those of his family; to associate with the friends of his choice; to think and worship freely, and to die secure in the knowledge that his children, and their children, shall have the same opportunities."

With this long-range program set up, the immediate problem in the United States is to increase agricultural production and stabilize prices to the point of assuring that "freedom from want" may become more of a reality in this country, for, as the president said, the first obligation of each country is to its own people.

No Primary Contests Likely

WITH no party contests yet in sight, within a few days of the deadline for filing petitions of candidacy for nomination for city offices, present likelihood is that Mansfield voters will this year escape the expense and trouble of holding an August primary election.

It now appears that both parties will be satisfied to present one candidate for each of the offices to be filled, rather than to indulge in primary contests, and unless some individual is inclined to put himself forward as a candidate, without organization encouragement, the several thousand dollars cost of conducting a primary can probably be saved.

The purpose of primary elections is to permit free expression of preference by voters and to open the field to all aspirants for public offices, but the scant interest ordinarily shown in primaries tends to place selection of candidates in the hands of a relatively small percentage of voters and it would seem ridiculous to go to the expense of holding a primary election in Mansfield this year merely to decide one or two minor contests. No primary contest is anticipated in either party for any of the major offices.

Bricker Denies Expressing Views

GOVERNOR BRICKER'S careful avoidance of any direct statement of his position on international questions seems to strengthen his denial of a story sent by F. G. A. Cook to the London Standard, purporting to quote the governor as "inflexibly opposed to any form of an international armed force" or a league of nations.

"It was just a conversation," the governor explained when asked about the interview. "Those are not my words, they are strictly those of the writer, to whom I did not give any direct quotations."

"There ought to be some way of implementing the world-wide desire of people for peace," the interviewer quotes Governor Bricker as having said, and such a broad generality seems to justify no denial—but how this is to be accomplished without unified action by a group of large nations, with power of enforcement against potential aggressors, is left unexplained.

"Certainly he is cautious when world affairs come up for discussion," commented the interviewer, "but he is frank about the reason, 'I just don't know enough'."

Whether or not Governor Bricker was misquoted in this interview, as he charges, or whether he said anything along international lines during the course of "conversation," is less important than what he intends to say in promotion of his candidacy for the presidential nomination next year. If it is his idea that the groundwork for permanent peace can be laid without maintenance of an international armed force the people of America should be so informed without further delay—so that he may be removed from further consideration even as a "presidential possibility."

Something Cookin' In Argentina

ACCUSTOMED to the processes of "orderly government," with freedom of the ballot depended upon to bring about changes of administration when deemed advisable, it is not easy for people in the United States to fully understand such a revolt as has taken place in Argentina.

It appears that, while the chief executive of Argentina is known as "president," actual government tends more strongly toward dictatorship than democracy, and that it was minority opinion—favorable to the Axis—that kept Argentina from joining all other South American countries in supporting the Allied cause.

Quick turn of events, with resignation of President Castillo, followed almost immediately by the resignation of General Arturo Rawson, who turned the reins of government over to General Pedro Ramirez, leaves the actual situation in Argentina in doubt, insofar as intended severance of Axis relations is concerned.

The attitude of the former Argentina administration, in tolerating subversive activities by German and Italian minorities, and an espionage ring of Axis agents, has been disturbing to other South American countries and has resulted in Brazil taking a dominant military position in that area.

The United States has scrupulously refrained from interference in Argentina's internal affairs but that country's pro-Axis activities, under the guise of neutrality, have caused it to be increasingly cut off from economic benefits enjoyed by pro-Ally neighbors.

NOW THAT COMMENCEMENT IS OVER

Air Offensive Against Germany Weakens Nazi Defensive Power

by DEWITT MACKENZIE

WHAT justification is there for the German claim that even though the Allies invade southern Europe they will find the Axis armies unconquerable?

That assertation was made in a Berlin broadcast, picked up by the Associated Press. A commentator was discussing invasion articles in the German army organ Die Wehrmacht. He admitted that the Allies might make a landing somewhere but declared they "would not have the slightest chance in battle against the Axis continental armies with their millions of well-trained and well-equipped troops."

Well, the answer to that is the key to the defeat which the United Nations are now in process of administering to Herr Hitler.

The Boche are arguing from a premise which might have been sound a year ago but no longer holds good. They're clutching at straws which already have been swept past them down the stream.

It is a fact—and one not to be overlooked — that the fuehrer's most powerful weapon is his army, although what once was the mightiest fighting-machine ever put together is now showing many signs of wear and tear.

It's true, too, that the Allies would be up against a terrific task if they were faced with the necessity of smashing that Nazi army with land forces alone. Hitler might be able to defend himself indefinitely.

The point is that he would be sitting inside a great defensive circle. His communications would be short and he would be able to fling his forces in any direction quickly to meet attack. All his war industries would be safe inside that ring.

The Allies, on the other hand, would be striking them from the outside of the huge perimeter, and their communications would be long and difficult. Such a German defensive position would be just about impregnable.

HOWEVER, that's one of those "might have been" situations. As things stand, the Allies aren't compelled to crush Hitler entirely with land troops. In fact, they can do a goodly portion of the job in a much easier way. That's by bombing.

You will note that the Berlin commentator assumed his master's troops would be "well equipped." He overlooked the fact that Hitler's iron ring, for defense against a land army, renders his entire set-up vulnerable to bombing in view of the shift of the balance of air-power to the Allies.

The United Natons now can reach Hitler's communications and war industries across all parts of the circle. When they achieve their invasion of southern Europe they will add further to their facilities for reaching every Axis manufacturing center and line of communications. Air bases in northern Italy, for instance, would be a tremendous asset.

The day and night blasting which the Anglo-American and Russian air forces are administering to the reich is stripping Hitler of his ability to keep his army "well equipped."

One of these days the cumulative effect of this aerial offensive is going to hit him all of a sudden and he will find himself with a Wehrmacht which still will have great strength in manpower but will lack the arms with which to defend itself.

Then will be the time when the Allies will send their own armies marching against the Hitlerian forces. Actually, of course, the terrific aerial and naval bombardments which the United Nations are laying down against the enemy are the preliminaries to invasion. That is to say, the invasion operations already are under way even though we can't foresee the exact moment of landing.

Meanwhile, with the Allies holding aerial superiority — and outright supremacy in some areas like the North African theatre—Hitler's Luftwaffe is unable to strike from within his charmed circle at the distant production centers of the United Nations. Our strength grows daily while his decreases.

Wasted Paper.

If the printing machinery is available to handle that size of security the treasury will reduce the size and shape of war savings bonds to about that of folding money, according to Secretary Henry Morgenthau.

The purpose is not to accommodate the public by a smaller-size certificate but to save paper. Morgenthau says 32,000,000 separate bonds were issued in the second loan drive. A lot of paper was used up. Apparently that worries the secretary. It is an odd bit of economy thinking.

Tons upon tons of paper are used daily by Washington bureaus on announcements, publicity and whatnot. Henry's bonds will not be tossed into a waste basket where practically all the rest of Washington printed communiques go.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

That old crack, "I don't know why he hates me; I never did him a favor in my life," could certainly apply in this case. No president in history ever did more for labor than Franklin D. Roosevelt. His whole career in office has been featured by good deeds for organized labor. Yet in the hour of his greatest burdens, labor is making it tougher for him.

If any leader deserves consideration and gratitude from the workers it is Mr. Roosevelt, and most of 'em know it. But they ought to be more outspoken against the ones that harass him.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL we were talking to a fellow who is a buyer for a big store and he said "I am very optimistic for the four freedoms but right now I would like to locate four diapers."

* * *

He says the government cut diaper production down 90 per cent evidently not having heard that the stork has increased his production.

* * *

He says "Practically everybody but the government knows that during a war, more people get married, there are more babies born and there is need for more diapers."

* * *

We said weren't there any diapers around in storage anywhere and he smiled bitterly and said there was a story that lend-lease shipped 'em all off to Africa and the natives are wearing 'em for turbans.

* * *

He cautioned us that maybe the story was exaggerated but we said if it was lend-lease probably it wasn't.

* * *

Then he drew us into a corner and whispered that the production of men's pajamas also was down to 10 per cent and we said what would we do when our present pajamas wore out and he said "You will go to bed looking like a taxpayer if you know what I mean."

Back-Stage Events In Coal Crisis, Ickes and War Labor Board Clash

WASHINGTON—The inside story of the coal negotiations, confronting the nation with one of its worst labor crises in history, has never been told completely. Unfortunately it is a story of prima donna bickering, with John L. Lewis not the only culprit, but the War Labor Board standing on its high-hat dignity, and many of the coal operators all too anxious to use the coal crisis as a means of discrediting the president's pro-labor policy.

Most important chapter in the story begins on Sunday, May 2, at which time the president gave Secretary of the Interior Ickes control of the mines. On that day John L. Lewis, at his own request, came to see Ickes.

Ickes secured from Lewis a 15-day truce and also agreed to help in the negotiations to bring the miners and mine operators together.

"But," added Ickes explicitly, "anything that is done must be okayed by the War Labor Board. They are in charge of this wage dispute."

WLB Gets Temperamental.

NEXT DAY, the first bit of temperament flared forth. It came after John L. Lewis had told the press that the miners were negotiating "in cooperation" with Ickes. Immediately the War Labor Board hit the ceiling, ran to the White House, claimed that Ickes had usurped their jurisdiction and that the miners could not negotiate with Ickes.

To placate the War Labor Board, Secretary Ickes called a press conference and made a public statement that he had nothing to do with wage negotiations, this being up to the board.

So the dispute dragged on. John L. Lewis, who hates Roosevelt, sat down with the Roosevelt-bating mine operators. The operators had none of their top-notch men present, but were represented by second string lawyers, who, when a proposal was made, had to go out of the room and phone their principals.

Spokesman for the Southern operators was ex-Senator Ed Burke, of Nebraska, who opposed the president bitterly on almost everything while in the senate, and has continued to oppose him since.

Finally, as the deadline of May 31 approached, Ickes, seeing a certain coal strike just a few hours off, called in both John L. Lewis and the coal operators. Ex-Senator Burke, of the Southern operators, did not show up. But Charles A. O'Neill, of the Northern operators, did.

Portal-to-Portal.

BY THIS time the miners had been given a guaranteed six-day week, some concessions on the upkeep of their tools, and were arguing about portal-to-portal pay. But nobody could agree how long the men were under ground, so they wouldn't determine portal-to-portal pay. Finally, Ickes proposed:

"None of you seem to know just what portal-to-portal means, so why not appoint a commission of three to decide it—one miner, one operator and one neutral? Then we can keep on mining coal and when portal-to-portal pay is decided, the miners can get the benefit of interim pay."

John L. Lewis accepted this in principle, but proposed that the interim pay, until the final decision was made, should be $1.50 a day. O'Neill, however, proposed interim pay of 80 cents.

This was at about 6 p. m. Monday, May 31. Ickes had to leave for a radio broadcast, and came back at 8 p. m. to find the conference still deadlocked. O'Neill had raised the ante to $1 a day interim pay until final portal-to-portal pay was decided. But Lewis would not budge. He still stood out for $1.50.

It was at this point that negotiations broke down. The truce expired at midnight that night, and next day the miners were not at their pits.

Complaint to Roosevelt.

NEXT DAY also, the War Labor Board heard about Ickes' last minute intervention. Again they hit the ceiling. This time they sent a letter to the president threatening to resign if the secretary of the interior intervened again.

Meanwhile, Ickes sent a letter to the president giving his views of the War Labor Board. Honest Harold, famous for his vituperation, poured more of it into that letter than almost any other he has written. He accused the WLB of being more interested in its own prestige than in preventing the most serious strike of the war.

It was at this point that the president last week called in all the members of the War Labor Board, plus Ickes, and Justice Byrnes, to thresh out the entire question. It was a seething session. Dean Wayne Morse, of the University of Oregon, public member of the board, got off some hot barbs at Ickes. Chairman Davis was more restrained.

Ickes, in reply, described the WLB's action as illegal and unconstitutional, especially when they had served notice on the operators and miners that they could not reach an agreement between themselves but could only negotiate before the WLB.

The president sided with his secretary of interior. But by this time, the strike already was in progress. Roosevelt had been put in one of the most difficult holes of his long career by a labor union which he had helped more than any other president in history.

You'll Want To Know About Tunisian Fleas; Hailstones Big As Tennis Balls—Honest.

NORTHERN TUNISIA—(Delayed)—With the arrival of warmer weather we've started accumulating our spring crop of fleas.

Nobody can trace their origin. We shun such flea-carriers as camels, burros and Arabs, but the fleas just seem to spring into life out of nothingness.

One magazine photographer has more than 30 vicious bites. One fighter pilot says you can actually see solid lines of them, like ants, hopping up the legs of his cot. Another pilot says he has solved the flea problem by getting under different layers of his blankets about three times a night. He says it takes the fleas two hours to find him after each change.

However, something is very wrong with the flea picture, for I haven't had any of them yet. For years I have been a sort of proving ground for the insect world—all such things as mosquitoes, chiggers and chicken lice apparently visualize a welcome on my doormat, and they turn my frail body into a monument of torture. Yet so far the Tunisian flea has given me a wide berth.

Surrounded as I am by the flea-bitten fraternity of soldiery, this strange immunity is beginning to be embarrasing. Could it be that I'm getting too repulsive even for fleas to associate with?

* * *

SOMETHING happened the other day that you won't believe, yet I'll swear on oath I'm not exaggerating, and there are several thousand fliers and mechanics who will back me up.

;hspWr,"n,dw¼ou¼Es n a

At one flying field we had a sudden freakish hailstorm which lasted 15 solid minutes. The hailstones were the size of eggs, and some of them ran as big as tennis balls. That's the truth. There were no little hailstones at all. And I don't mean that just a few fell. They fell in torrents, like a tropical cloudburst.

After it was over, the ground was inches deep in ice balls. One of the mechanics said he had heard his grandmother tell about a similar storm that occurred in her childhood, but he had never expected to see such a thing himself.

I was caught out in it, and had to jump out crawl under my jeep for protection. My feet stuck out, and I took a dozen direct hits on my feet and ankles which pained like hammer blows. I really believe that if I hadn't had the jeep for cover I would have been beaten to a pulp.

Hailstones went right through the tail surfaces of the airplanes. A checkup showed that 68 out of 69 planes on the field had damaged tails. But the mechanics worked fast, and they were all in the air again by noon the next day.

And this happened a day after I'd written half a column about our magnificent spring weather over here in dear old Africa!

SOME pilots I know were coming up to the front the other day in a medium bomber, from way back behind the lines. They had a tail-wind that they didn't know about, and were flying due east. They realized something was wrong when they came out over water. A little lightning calculation and they discovered they were looking smack down on the city of Tunis, which was definitely the wrong place for them to be wandering around alone.

They turned and beat it back as fast as four scared airmen possibly could, and during the whole time over enemy territory they never saw a single enemy plane. Other pilots call it a million-to-one chance to fly over Tunis in daytime and not see a single German fighter.

AFTER any big tank battle both sides are out on the battlefields towing back everything that's repairable. Sometimes each side will recover and repair enemy tanks.

The Germans got a number of our General Sherman tanks in the mid-February battle of Sidi bou Zid. They repaired them, and later on used them against the British Eighth army, which also had American Sherman tanks.

Thus it wound up that British Shermans and German Shermans rumbled into battle against each other, and the British Shermans re-captured the German Shermans.

A Farmer's Diary — By CALVIN A. BYERS

In June Woods

I WALKED along the silent shelter of my neighbor's woods. Long leafy branches stretched far across the old worm fence reaching southward for the light. I stooped beneath the maze of wood and leaves and climbed the weathered, lichen-covered rails. The surface felt moss-grown and soft from excessive moisture.

Tall trees stood like giants of the curving valley. Roots of beech and sugar ran far along the surface, then took anchor in deeper, firmer soil. Last year's leaves were like wet rags as I stepped upon them. The mould beneath was a dark earthy sponge filled with thready roots of fungi.

Abundant colonies of toadstools were there—some bright red or maroon, some a soft pale yellow, and one richly clothed in purple. Fallen branches, weakened by decay, held regretfully their devastating bracket fungi—some as small as pinheads, others as large as squirrel's ears. I observed these fungi in gray, checkered lines upon a giant oak, and knew it was marked for death.

Spring beauties, wild geraniums, bluebells and trilliums were gone with the coming of the denser shade. Occasionally, near some decaying stump, I noticed a modest, green hooded, Jack-in-the-pulpit, or Indian turnip. Even this showed signs of age, where the base of the hood changed from green, to drab crinkling edges.

Now tall branching rattle weed, bull thistles in open places, partridge berries, sprouting oak and maple seedlings and infant ash and beech have taken over where t' earlier race of flowers failed.

Pungent fragrance of wild blackberry bloom floats down from the edge of an open field beyond; blooming wild grape sends its eerie delicate odor across my path. I sit upon the barkless trunk of a fallen beech and listen to the murmur of the woodland spring from its deep ravine.

A cuckoo glides silently through the greenery and is lost to view, but from higher ground I hear the mournful note of this 'rain bird.' Swallows race through rifts between the tree tops and higher and more majestically a buzzard sails, rising at will without the slightest motion of his wings.

AN APPLE FOR EVE--

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1943)

"If ever you want to telephone, telephone," she said. "But you might hear something entirely different tonight, for our loathly friend Al Harris was hanging around today."

"Harris was? That's the weird old boy who claimed the reward?"

"Yes, he came slinking up while I was hanging out some clothes. It was such a dark, foggy morning that I didn't see him until he was within three feet of me. He loomed up like a spook. He asked me if he could store some of his wife's things in the attic; he said he might be going away and he had nowhere to leave them. I said yes, of course, and then added brightly, having meant this from the beginning, that there was a nice dry little room over the meal room in the small barn, where an old hired man we had used to live, and he could take possession there and store anything he pleased. He didn't look a bit satisfied; he said that my grandmother used to let him go up in the attic, but I said—which is quite true—that Hugh and I are planning to divide off a four-room apartment on the second floor and we've locked the attic stairs. No, don't be afraid," Loveday broke off, laughing as Chris still looked serious, "he's probably miles away by this time! He's haunted by the idea of Grandfather's money, and yet there isn't an inch of this entire place that hasn't been searched, and by experts, too. They tapped floor boards and ran their hands into rafters and measured baseboards for weeks. They went over the garden with rods that showed whether the earth had been disturbed or not. I don't know what it cost my grandmother, but it was the Owen Hugh Gurney hospital she was worried about, and she didn't care what it cost!"

"But do you lock doors here at night, Loveday?"

"Sometimes. I think it would scare me more to lock up than to leave things open."

"Lord, I wish this phase was over!" He framed her face in his hands. "I wish we'd never met."

"I wish I could hear of something nice happening to Larry," she observed whimsically. "Isn't it too bad," she added, "that not wishing a person any harm, and really feeling delighted if any good comes to him, you can still feel that he—he clutters up the picture so terribly? D'you know what we ought to do and what we're going to do?" she asked with sudden decisiveness. "We're going to part tonight and not see each other until I've seen Larry and talked it all over with him and settled everything. It's just come to me that that's the only honorable way. My job is here, and my children are here, and I'm Mrs. Lawrence Ingersoll. What's that?" she added suddenly in a frightened voice as the sound of the bell rang through the quiet house.

"Who'd that be?" Chris asked, also on his feet.

"There are lots of bells, but nobody rings them. It's the front door, I think," she said, alarmed. "But who—at this hour—"

"After all, it isn't nine yet," the man said.

"That's true."

They went out into the hall together. The girl snapped up a light and opened the front door to reveal the suspicious little weazened face of Al Harris, hung like a mask against the pitchy blackness beyond. Before she could speak Chris addressed the caller harshly.

"Well, what do you want?"

Harris looked at Chris in obvious confusion. He had expected evidently to find Loveday alone, or at all events in different company.

"I seen your light—" he began. Chris cut him short with another abrupt demand as to what he wanted. "I was wonderin' if maybe there was a key to that place up in the barn," Harris said.

"Have you been up there ever since this morning?" Loveday asked. "I told you to put your stuff in there and go down with the Bettancourt boy when he went to the village at noon."

"They's an old bed in there," Harris explained, "and I went to sleep."

"Well, you get off the place now and don't came around again," Chris said, "or you'll find your stuff and yourself out on the road. I don't propose to have Mrs. Ingersoll or the children bothered with you!"

"No use to make an enemy of him; he's not responsible," Loveday began warningly. "I don't see how you can possibly get to the village now, Al," she continued, "so you might as well go back to the barn and finish up the night. Unless," she added on a sudden inspiration, "Mr. St. George will take you as far as Indian Hill when he goes."

"That's what I'll do," Chris agreed but without satisfaction. "I'll be going soon," he told Harris, "and I'll toot my horn when I start. I suppose," he added discontentedly to Loveday when they had closed the door upon Harris' departing back, "I can get him so far tonight that he can't get back; I'll take care of that. But I'll be damned if I like a sneak like that hanging around here."

"He's harmless enough," she told him.

But harmless or not Harris' arrival had proved an interruption to their fireside mood. They went back to the library but only for a few moments' talk; Chris did not sit down again, and Loveday did not ask him to.

"I'll get Harris as far as the village," the man said, "and give him a word of warning."

"I wouldn't do that. You don't know what crackbrained idea he might get into his head. Much better," she said, unalarmed, "to give him fifty cents and tell him to get himself some dinner."

"He's evidently been hanging about here all day."

"Oh, well, if he has no great harm done. After all, he used to growl over the place in my grandmother's time; nobody minded much."

She went out into the windy autumn darkness with Chris; the trees were bending and creaking restlessly; there would be a storm. "Winter at last," she said; "we've had such a beautiful long autumn!"

Chris touched his horn; the sound was blown away on a sudden swoop of the gale. He tried it again; no Harris appeared.

"Now isn't he a complete pest!" Chris said disgustedly. "He'd better show up or I'll—No, I can't do that. I can't go without him."

"He's probably gone back to the barn and gone to sleep. I wouldn't give him another thought." She felt suddenly tired out in the rough, soft wind that spoke of rain and storm. No moon, no stars were in sight; clouds tumbled darkly overhead, and the trees bowed and creaked. "I will lock up tonight, Chris," she said, smothering a yawn secretly under cover of the surrounding blackness, "and tomorrow I'll see that Bettancourt gets him off the place."

"No, I'll stay in Hugh's room," Chris said with sudden decision. "I'd worry myself sick driving away from you with that half-wit on the loose somewhere. Let's go and build up the fire and finish the evening, and whenever you're sleepy I'll turn in in Hugh's room. Now don't be silly, Loveday; that's the only sensible thing to do!"

Her hair was wildly blown about her cheeks glowing when they came back into the quiet of the lighted hall. He built up the fire; she seated herself on the broad davenport that faced it, and Chris, his exertions concluded and the fire roaring behind the blower, sat down somewhat breathless beside her.

"If you hadn't been here I would have been really frightened by Harris," she admitted thoughtfully. She was tired, she said, and Chris said he was tired, too, but they sat on lazily in the warmth for a while, talking sometimes and sometimes silent. "It's after ten, I'm going up. I'll leave a light in Hugh's room," she said later.

"I'm coming." Chris rattled the poker in the grate fire, followed her as she went along extinguishing lights. He tried the front door. "He won't get in tonight, anyway," he said.

In the big dim upper hallway she whispered not to wake the sleeping children.

"D'you want to be waked, Chris? Breakfast any time, but I'm always down early with the children."

"Better give me a call." He caught her toward him for a light kiss on the temple before closing his bedroom door.

Loveday went in to settle the baby off for the night, pulled warmer covers over the sprawling twins. Branches were crackling and tossing outside in the dark.

She went into her own room, loosening the heavy cornet of her braided hair. The dressing table light made a little oasis in the gloom. Loveday turned to open her bed, stopped short, rooted to the spot.

The adjoining twin bed had an occupant. The covers were bunched up in a manner entirely familiar to her, outlining a long, hunched body. And on the pillow were visible an angle of hard brown cheek and chin and the untidy mop of Larry Ingersoll.

SPENDS ENTIRE PAY FOR BONDS

ST. LOUIS — (INS) — Mrs. Ollie Edith Ellis Sheets of St. Louis, a war plant worker, has pledged her entire wages to buy war bonds.

Acknowledging she doesn't have to work for a living, Mrs. Sheets said she took the job because she believed she was not doing enough for the battle against the Axis by staying at home.

"I can take a double crack at the Axis—by working in a war plant and using my wages to buy war bonds," Mrs. Sheets said.

'MAGIC LAMP'

Invention Does Things Never Thought of By Aladdin.

OMAHA, Neb. — (INS — A magic lamp that does many things that Aladdin never thought of was described to the Omaha Engineers' club recently by George A. Payton of Chicago.

The lamp, known as the "sterilamp," was invented by Robert James and has been in use for four years in manufacturing plants, hospitals and schooles. Some of its accomplishments are ageing meat in three days instead of six weeks, destroying bacteria in poultry, meat, cheese, baking, milk, beer, cosmetics, soft drinks and serum and vaccines.

It is an ultraviolet lamp that emits a pale blue light and looks much like the fluorescent lamps in common use. It uses less electricity than a small household bulb.

Payton said that a battery of the lights were installed in Duke hospital at Durham, N. C., recently as an experiment. Results were astonishing. Previously infections were occurring in about a third of certain operations. After the lights were placed, there were only five cases of infection in 132 operations.

No Need to Skimp on Quality!

Because High Standard covers so much surface per gallon, this typical six-room house (24' x 32' x 15') can be painted with two coats of HIGH STANDARD for an approximate material cost of only . . . $18.25

THE EXTRA PROTECTION OF Lowe Brothers HIGH STANDARD HOUSE PAINT COSTS YOU NOTHING

Here's why the extra protection of LOWE BROTHERS HIGH STANDARD HOUSE PAINT actually costs you nothing. It covers solidly more surface per gallon than "cheap" paint. It spreads evenly and easily to save time and money. So it actually goes farther to cost less per square-foot-of-surface protected. And that means that extra beauty and extra protection costs you nothing.

MISS LOUISE SAGAR HAS JUNE WEDDING

Lovely Ceremony Takes Place In First Presbyterian Church In Crestline; Couple Will Make Home In El Paso, Tex.

THE LOVELY WEDDING of Miss Louise Sagar and Lieut. David L. Shelley took place Sunday in the First Presbyterian church in Crestline with Rev. Louis Allerton officiating. The couple exchanged wedding vows at 3:30 p. m., after a half hour's program of nuptial organ music played by Mrs. Gregg Pennington of Crestline.

The bride, who was escorted to an altar banked with palms and ferns, and given in marriage by her father, was wearing a floor length gown of white faille taffeta, tucked in lace. The gown's long sheath sleeves ended in point lace. The bride wore her finger tip length veil of illusion virgin style. It was held in place by a seed pearl coronet. The only jewelry was a strand of pearls, worn by the bride's mother, at her own wedding.

The bride carried a white prayer book over which was a spray of stephanotis and a white orchid.

Mrs. Robert H Boyd, of Columbus, was Miss Sagar's matron of honor. She wore a lily yellow marquisette gown trimmed in point lace, with a matching Juliet cap. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Roy Russel of Middletown, only sister of the bride, and Miss Mildred Miller of this city, a close friend. They wore aqua gowns fashioned exactly as that of the matron of honor. All attendants carried arm bouquets of yellow roses.

Best man for Lieut. Shelley was Staff Sgt. Robert H. Boyd of Columbus.

Ushers were Adam Brandt, and Bruce McGinty, close friends of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Sagar appeared at her daughter's wedding in a St. John's rose silk jersey with which she wore white accessories. Mother of the bridegroom wore a Carribean blue silk jersey with white accessories. Both wore sorsages of gardenias.

In her program, Mrs. Pennington included "I Love You Truly," "Ave Maria," "Because," "Indian Love Call," "Liebestraum," "I Love Thee," "O Promise Me" and the traditional wedding marches. Miss Jennie Lou Gannoway sang "Because" and "I Love Thee."

A reception for 75 guests was held at the Bemiller Guest Home in Galion, following the ceremony. The refreshment table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. Miss Evelyn Timmons, Miss Jane Marquette and Mrs. Mary Jane Roberts poured.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Sagar of Crestline. She is a graduate of the Crestline high school and Office Training school in Columbus. She is a member of the Zeta Rho chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority. Before her marriage she was employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Mr. and Mrs. David Shelley are the parents of Lieut. Shelley, who is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and Washington-Jefferson college in Washington, Pa. Before entering the armed forces, he was affiliated with his father at the Shelley Candy company.

When the couple left for a short wedding trip, the new Mrs. Shelley was wearing a two piece suit of rose silk with navy accessories and an orchid corsage. After their wedding trip, the newlyweds will make their home in El Paso, Tex., where Lieut. Shelley is stationed at Fort Bliss.

Hobby Club Has Regular Meeting

Mrs. Guy Shawk was in charge of the meeting of the Buckeye Hobby club which was held Monday night in the club rooms at the Y.M.C.A.

The club decided to have a rummage sale as the project for fall. It was also decided that there would be no more meetings until sometime in September when a family picnic will be held with Mrs. Harry Shover as chairman. The exact date of the picnic will be announced later in the summer.

Mrs. Mae Riggle Weds Grant Gillespie

Mrs. Mae A. Riggle, 14½ Lexington avenue, and Grant Gillespie of Akron were united in marriage on June 6 at the First Lutheran church at 2:30.

Rev. Grover Swoyer read the ceremony. The bride was attired in an aqua street length dress. Mrs. Gillespie was formerly a school teacher. The couple will reside in Akron where Mr. Gillespie is employed.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Miss Baughman Honored With Farewell Party

Miss Lois Baughman, who has been affiliated with the local chapter of Junior Red Cross for approximately three or four years, was entertained Monday night by her associates at the home of Mrs. William J. Bishop, 587 Arlington avenue.

Miss Baughman will leave for Washington, D. C. for training in the Red Cross field service, where her work will center around the entertainment for convalescent service men.

Bridge was in session during the evening. Prizes were awarded to Miss Lucille Lorow, Mrs. Beatrice Balyeat and Mrs. Milo Hieber. Miss Baughman received a personal gift from the group. The guests made two recordings for Miss Baughman to take with her.

Luncheon was served by the hostess at individual tables. She carried out her decorations in red and white.

Mrs. Nick Marion, the former Jane Stough, who was employed as the junior Red Cross secretary at one time, was an out of town guest. Mrs. Marion is now residing in Columbus.

Reveal Date Of Wedding Of Mary E. Weaver

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weaver, Weller township, are announcing the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Weaver, to Robert M. Wilson, machinist second class, which will take place on June 12.

Miss Weaver, a graduate of Union high school, is employed at the Hartman Electric company. Mr. Wilson, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Weaver, Madison township, is a graduate of Madison high school. At the present he is an instructor at Navy Pier, Chicago, Ill. Before entering the service he was employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Plan Picnic At Bible Class Meet

Tentative plans for a picnic, to be held July 7, were made at the recent meeting of the Findley Anderson Bible class meeting held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Druschel on Helen avenue.

Hostesses at the picnic will be Mrs. Alice Miller, Mrs. Helen Melauson and Mrs. J. C. Brant. The place will be announced at a later date.

Twenty members who attended the meeting answered the roll call with a verse from the book of Matthew. Mrs. F. W. Wilson, president, conducted the business meeting. The class chairman had charge of the program during which members enjoyed group singing. The evening was spent socially.

THEATERS

Leapin' Lena.

A certain United States Navy submarine which must remain nameless, now has aboard as a mascot, a huge bull frog named Lena. The pet was given to the crew by members of the cast of 20th Century-Fox's "Crash Dive" after the company finished location shots for the film, which is now playing at the Ohio. Tyrone Power, star of the picture, made the presentation on behalf of the cast, which includes Anne Baxter and Dana Andrews—not to mention Lena, herself.

Dixie Dugan.

America's sweethearts of the comic strips steps out of the funnies and onto the screen in 20th Century-Fox's "Dixie Dugan," her first motion picture adventure. Lois Andrews, a Hollywood newcomer, plays the part of Dixie. All of the Dugan clan are on hand. Charlie Ruggles is seen as Pa, and Charlotte Greenwood as Ma. And they have their hands full as Dixie goes gallivanting in wartime Washington, sabotaging saboteurs and foiling fifth columnists. Other Madison attraction is "Undercover Man," starring Bill Boyd as the western hero, Hopalong Cassidy.

Truck Film Opens.

Thrills of the highway make up the Ritz's top picture, "Truck Busters," which starts tomorrow. Richard Travis and Virginia Christine head a featured cast that includes Charles Lang, William Davidson, Don Costello. The picture deals with the lives of the young men who drive the mighty cross-country trucks so necessary to modern civiliatiozn. "Miss V From Moscow" is the co-feature.

Bartholomew Film.

Freddie Bartholomew has become so Americanized that playing a part of an English boy in Columbia's "Junior Army," now at the Park, caused him to delve back into the memory a few times for some typical British conversation. In "Junior Army," Freddie has the leading role, and plays the part of a well-bred English refugee who is responsible for changing the life and thinking of a tough young hobo, Billy Halop "Silver Skates," ice spectable starring Belita, English-born figure champion, is the other film.
